Merchants Plan Survey on Change

Shift in Night Hours From Friday Topic at Meeting

Kingston merchants at a meeting last night decided to survey the shopping public before taking action on a proposal to change the night on which stores remain open.

In the absence of any definite action, Friday will remain Kingston's "shopping night" while the survey is in progress.

Named to a committee to find out the general public's opinions on changing the shopping night, possibly to Thursday, were Byron Chatham, manager of the local J. C. Penney Company store; Clyde Wonderly, Jr., vice president of The Wonderly Co., Inc., and Arthur London of London's Youth Center and Junior Bazaar.

The meeting Wednesday night was called by the Kingston Merchants Association and was held at the Hotel Stuyvesant, with about 50 merchants attending.

There was much discussion, both in favor and opposed to changing the evening store hours.

The matter of changing the evening business hours to another night came into prominence as a topic for discussion here after Poughkeepsie merchants began keeping stores open Thursday instead of Friday evening.

Kingston Days Discussed

At Thursday night's meeting, plans for the coming Kingston Days were also discussed and dates were set. In accordance with the merchants' practice, the dates will not be made public until just prior to the sale.

Appointed to the Kingston Days committee were Arthur London, chairman, Byron Chatham, Daniel Weisberg and Herbert Gertner.

Jay Melton, president of the Kingston Merchants Association, asked the group to participate in the pageant being planned as a part of Kingston's 300th anniversary celebration. He also asked cooperation in the coming membership drive to be conducted by the anniversary group.

Among those present at the meeting were Lawrence J. MacAvery, president, and Albert Kurdt, executive secretary, of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

Plenty of Herring

Stonington, Conn., Jan. 17 (AP)—Connecticut highway workers found the fishing pretty good on the Stonington-Westerly Road today. Police believe that the door of a heavily-loaded fish transport truck came open without the knowledge of the driver, spilling fish over about three miles of highway.

Reds Accuse U. S.

Paris, Jan. 17 (AP)—Russia today accused the United States and Britain of prolonging the dispute between India and Pakistan over control of Kashmir in order to turn that state into a western armed base.

Board Establishes Boundary Line for District Operation

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held Wednesday evening the board established January 28 as the date when the new Washington School on Wall street would be opened, and also established the boundary line between school district No. 7 and the Washington School district.

Students attending School No. 8 and a portion of the pupils at No. 7 School will be transferred to the new school. No. 8 School on Franklin street will be closed.

Line Is Selected

The Board of Education established Main street as the dividing line between school district No. 7 and the Washington School district. Children living in homes facing either side of Main street are included in the Washington School district area. This boundary line has been established only for the second term of the school year now in session.

Disposition of the No. 8 School building has not been determined by the board.

When the Washington school was first started it was hoped that it would be possible to get into the new building at the opening of school last September but delays in securing materials and also in securing certain types of labor, delayed the construction work and the tentative date was set for the mid-year vacation period. When schools opened after the Christmas recess there remained still some work to be completed before the building could be put to use and the opening date was delayed until January 28.

There still remains some work to be completed but this work

Streamliner Stays Deep in Snow as 254 Are Taken to Station at San Francisco

Are Fed, Bathed

Passengers, Crew Get Hot Meals, Take Time to Freshen Up

San Francisco, Jan. 17 (AP)—Tired refugee passengers from the snow-blanketed streamliner, City of San Francisco, arrived today—almost four days late.

They were noticeably weary and sober-faced. But most looked as if they'd just completed a normal 40-hour run from Chicago—instead of having survived three and a half storm-bound days in mile-high Donner Pass.

The deeply snow-packed high Sierra reluctantly had given up the 222 passengers and 32 Southern Pacific crewmen late yesterday. The empty luxury train still was stuck there.

A conductor gave these revised figures for the streamliner's 254 refugees: 144 Pullman and 108 coach passengers, a total of 222, and 32 crewman.

Those who started from Chicago Friday night in the sleek streamliner ended their trip in old-fashioned green Pullmans.

Arrives at 3:30 a. m.

Their relief train arrived at Oakland, just across San Francisco bay, about 3:30 a. m. (6:30 a. m. EST).

The tired men and women trickled slowly from the cars under lights for television cameras.

All were neat...the men freshly shaved.

On the relief train, which took seven and a half hours from mountains to coast, they had steaks and chicken, baths, changes of clothes, sleep.

Perhaps the embraces from some 300 waiting spectators were a little more than usual. A public address speaker boomed in the cavernous Oakland station, reeling off names endlessly to pick up messages.

Fifty-seven passengers slept aboard until late morning.

150 Aboard at End

An estimated 150 persons were aboard when the relief train snubbed to a stop at the end of the track. Fifteen, including two stratcher cases, had got off at Sacramento. Others left at later stops.

Half an hour after arrival at Oakland, some still popped out, sleepy-eyed.

Heroic Dr. Walter H. L. Roehll of Middletown, Ohio, said the experience was "something I'll never forget."

The stocky and gray 52-year-old physician had worked tirelessly to treat some 60 victims of gas fumes that seeped through the train shortly after regular heat gave out in the 20-degree temperatures Monday. Only a few remained ill.

He said his wife luckily had brought along a shoebox filled with medicines.

Vishinsky Labels General 'Cannibal'

Vishinsky Gives Sympathy to Jessup

Paris, Jan. 17 (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky today expressed his sympathy to U. S. Ambassador Philip C. Jessup because of Republican attacks on the American diplomat.

"I learned with some dismay," Vishinsky said in the course of a speech to the United Nations Political Committee, of the attack on Jessup by 38 Republican senators. The senators declared Jessup did not have the confidence of the American people and leaned toward un-American associations.

If called before Congress, the Soviet foreign minister said, "I would have to testify that he (Jessup) was the most arrant defender of the American way of thought.

"I must express my sympathy with Mr. Jessup."

Jessup was not in the room when Vishinsky spoke.

Soviet Official Uses Misquotation of Van Fleet Remark

Paris, Jan. 17 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky today called U. S. Lieut. Gen. James Van Fleet a "cannibal" unfitted to conduct armistice negotiations in Korea.

Vishinsky told the United Nations Political Committee the "unreasonable demands presented by the American command can give no hope for a successful conclusion of those negotiations."

"Only hypocrites," he said, "could want to leave truce talks in the hands of Van Fleet and other military leaders."

The Soviet foreign minister quoted the Associated Press as reporting that General Van Fleet was "perfectly satisfied" with war destruction in North Korea and the critical state of the civilian population.

"Those are the statements of a blood-thirsty man—of a cannibal," Vishinsky declared.

"This is what those who insist on military negotiations are covering up."

Distorts Remark

Vishinsky's quotation was a distortion of a remark Gen. Van Fleet made in an interview Jan. 13. Van Fleet was commenting on the dragged-out armistice talks and said the Communists were finding the war a "terrible drain" and needed and wanted the armistice. Then he added:

"I am satisfied the northern part of Korea is so badly destroyed that the Reds lack food, clothing and shelter and the population of North Korea is in very critical condition."

His usage of the word "satisfied" was in the sense of understanding the situation, not fulfillment of a desire.

Vishinsky was discussing an omnibus Russian peace plan which included as one of its features a demand that the UN vote for withdrawal of opposing forces in Korea from the 38th Parallel and the evacuation of foreign troops frm the peninsula.

The West has insisted that Vishinsky's repeated efforts to have the UN intervene in the talks on a political level could break up the talks at Panmunjom.

The Soviet plan also demands that the UN brand membership in the North Atlantic Pact as inconsistent with membership in the UN and calls for a new Big Five peace pact.

Not Until Armistice

The UN has already voted not to take up Korea until a military armistice is reached at the front.

Earlier in this session it turned down a proposal by Vishinsky that a special high-level Security Council meeting be called to deal with the issue.

Defeated on that, Vishinsky tried to get the assembly to take a hand in the talks and this proposal is an attempt to get it to endorse the Russian view on how to end the war.

Vishinsky denied western charges that the Soviet Union could stop the Korean war whenever it wanted. On the other hand, he claimed, an end to the war depends on cessation of unreasonable American demands.

He described the U. S. claims for exchange of prisoners of war as one of these. He described the U. S. as in effect, insisting on return of all her prisoners while only sending some of the Reds back.

Warren Tells GOP They Can't Win by Reversing Clock

California Governor Gives Blunt Statement, Outlines Liberal Proposals

San Francisco, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren of California told Republicans bluntly today they cannot "turn the clock back" and expect to win this year's presidential election.

Warren, an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, opened his party's national committee meeting with a luncheon speech. He outlined "liberal" platform planks he said his party must adopt if it expects to get a majority in the November election.

"I am convinced the American people are not socialists and will not tolerate socialistic government, but they definitely are committed to social progress," Warren declared in a prepared address.

"Any party which turns its back on social progress will be repudiated by the people."

No Mention of Taft

Warren made no mention of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, another GOP presidential candidate. But it was obvious his remarks were directed primarily toward national committee members who are backing the Ohioan's bid for the nomination.

Taft has stood for many "social progress" measures but he generally is accused by most of his critics of representing the so-called conservative wing of the party.

Warren's address keynoted a session at which Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson was scheduled to report on Republican prospects for the November Election.

To Present Case

David S. Ingalls, national chairman of the Taft-for-President committee, will present the Ohioan's case at a dinner tonight.

Warren, the 1948 vice presidential nominee, said he believes in trying to carry out party platforms between elections.

"I suggest we make it crystal clear to the American people that the things we advocated for their welfare in the platform are still party concerns and will continue to be so—that we do not intend to turn the clock back—that we are not willing to have present-day inequalities frozen into American life," the California governor said.

He said he doesn't go along with the theory that the people will vote for a change in national government "for the sake of change itself."

Man Killed in Crash

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—James B. O'Leary, about 50, identified as a Selective Service official of Chester, was killed yesterday in an automobile-train collision outside Middletown. Police said O'Leary's car struck the caboose of an Erie Railroad train at a crossing on the road's Pine Bush branch line.

Throng Cheers Carlsen From Bay to City Hall

Confetti and Ticker-Tape Shower Avenue and Thousands Line Sidewalks—Says Entire Matter Seems Unreal to Him

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen rode up Broadway today amid waves of cheers for his stout courage.

Over and over, came the shout: "Well done."

It was New York city's rousing salute to a man whose dauntless love of his ship had made him a hero to the world.

Clouds of confetti and streamers of ticker-tape snowed from skyscraper windows as Carlsen began his journey up the big city's traditional "Canyon of Heroes."

Thousands roared their tribute to the modest, little skipper, who for 15 days defied the storms of the Atlantic in a vain battle to bring his listing and cracked ship, the Flying Enterprise, to shore. Passengers and crew had abandoned her and only a British sailor from a rescue tug had shared the ship's final days with him.

He lost his ship, but won a high place in the annals of seafaring men.

And today, he rode up the path where other champions had passed—flier Charles A. Lindbergh, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, explorer Richard E. Byrd, "Blackjack" Pershing, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"I am really completely overwhelmed," the captain said embarrassedly. "I am completely amazed. I couldn't sleep last night. I realize now how much trouble I stirred up."

As the car carried him along the bunting-draped street, he grinned, nodded and gave his shy,

Studio and Music Go Up in Flames

New Paltz Composer Also Loses Concert Piano Wednesday Night

New Paltz, Jan. 17—A valuable library of music and a concert grand piano of a recognized woman composer were destroyed here Wednesday night, when a chicken house converted into a studio went up in flames.

Fire spread from an oil stove explosion, according to Fire Chief Isaac Pole, about two hours after Miss Marga Richter had left her place on the property of Mrs. Basil Ellison, Butterville road.

Chief Pole said the oil stove was left burning to keep dampness from ruining the highly prized piano.

Due for Conference

Miss Richter was said to be due for a conference in New York relative to the playing of one of her compositions next May.

Aid Needed For Success Of Project

Not After Comfort

His Visit Not Predicated on Making Life Easy for Britons, He Says

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Winston Churchill told Congress today the United States can count on the British to do their part in the defense of Europe.

The British Prime Minister said, however, American help is necessary if Britain is to meet the defense production goals it has set.

Speaking to a joint session of House and Senate in the historic House chamber, he declared "it is for you to judge" how much aid Britain should receive.

Will Make Big Effort

But whether the United States provides "much or little," Churchill declared, the British nations will continue to make a maximum effort to strengthen the defenses of the free world.

Of aid, Churchill said that he had come to the United States to ask "not for gold, but for steel, not for favors but for equipment."

This is necessary, he declared, not to aid British recovery, in which he expressed confidence, but to assist Britain in building its defenses.

He does not ask aid, he emphasized, to "make life more comfortable" for Britons.

Churchill was greeted by thunderous cheers when he came before the legislators. In the packed galleries were diplomats of many nations.

President Is Absent

President Truman, leaving the spotlight of the moment entirely to his British visitor, was not present. But Mrs. Truman was in the presidential gallery.

It was the third address Churchill has delivered to the U. S. Congress as prime minister of Britain. He spoke before it twice during World War 2—on Dec. 26, 1941, and again on March 19, 1943.

He alluded to this early in his address, speaking of it as his "good fortune."

He recalled, too, an address he made at Fulton, Mo., and requoted in part the words he spoke then:

"Let no one underrate the abiding power of the British empire."

He added:

"I am very glad to say the same to you here today."

Churchill spoke of the many changes in international relationships that have developed since World War 2.

He noted that some former enemies now are allies and some former allies now are antagonistic.

Not Fault of West

Speaking of Communist Russia, he said:

"It is not the fault of the western powers, if a great gulf has opened between us."

Expressing confidence the western world can meet any threat, he said that if the English speaking nations combine their industry and science "there will be no quivering balance of power to offer temptation to aggression."

Churchill noted that the United States had expected China to be one of the "big four" after the last war, and added:

"I was always a bit skeptical."

The prime minister said that although communism now controls the Chinese mainland, eventually he expects China to throw off communism.

Truck Tax Due Soon

Albany, Jan. 17—Monday, January 21, is another "due date" for motor carriers subject to the New York state truck mileage tax, the State Tax Commission reminded carriers today. The report due Monday will be the third monthly mileage tax return under the new law. The reports are due the 20th of each month covering truck operations in the previous calendar month. Inasmuch as the 20th of January falls on Sunday, carriers have an extra day in which to report their December operations.

Democrats Agree With GOP Tax Boost Is Out This Year

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Influential Democrats agreed with Republicans today that a fourth post-Korean tax boost is practically an impossibility in this election year.

At least one important Democrat expressed doubt that Congress would even go through the formality of holding hearings on President Truman's request for another five billion dollars in taxes.

By contrast, the outlook was bright for extension of the Defense Production Act, the basis for price, production and credit controls which was the other headliner in the President's annual economic report sent to Congress yesterday.

Even here, it seemed likely the President would have to settle for a one-year extension instead of two, and that the law might not be tightened up in the ways he recommended.

In the face of adverse statements by leading tax legislators of his own party in recent weeks, there was considerable surprise on Capitol Hill that Mr. Truman even asked for a new tax program.

His recommendation, yet to be detailed in the budget or a special message, called for an additional load of around five billion dollars. He said this could be obtained "by eliminating loopholes and special privileges, and by some tax rate increases."

Won't Prevent Locking

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 17 (AP)—An Iranian spokesman said today Britain's protest will "not prevent the closing of British consulates in Iran." The spokesman told reporters Iran would make clear in the current diplomatic exchanges that maintenance of consulates must be based upon mutual consent.

Route Is Changed

New City, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Thruway Authority has amended the route of the proposed Thruway in Rockland county, from Nyack to Suffern. James S. Bixby, district engineer of the State Department of Public Works, said the new route will save an estimated $1,200,000 in right-of-way and construction costs. Also, he said, it will result in better grades in the Suffern area and save cutting Suffern into two sections, as originally proposed.

American Jets Down Three And Destroy Three Tanks

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—American jet pilots were credited with downing three Red jets today, two of them without firing a shot. They also destroyed three Communist tanks near Kaesong, former site of armistice talks.

Two acrobatic Sabre jet pilots were credited with the gunless air victory. The U. S. Fifth Air Force said they outmaneuvered two MIG-15s so badly the Red jets apparently went "into a high speed stall from which they were unable to recover."

The Red pilots bailed out and their planes crashed. The third MIG was shot down by Lt. Col. James B. Raebel of Redfield, S. D. Another Red jet was damaged in a series of air battles.

Two young lieutenants on their first combat missions burned out the three Russian-type T-34 tanks near Kaesong. They said their fire bombs turned the tanks into "gutted hulks." A fourth was damaged.

The two Shooting Star pilots—2nd Lieuts. George Patterson of Orlando, Fla., and Robert E. Railey of Oakland, Md.—said they spotted the tanks just outside the restricted area surrounding Kaesong.

The Communists charged that American planes early today attacked the Kaesong protected zone, now headquarters of the Red truce delegation.

There was no report of any major action on the snow-covered ground. Eight small fights broke out on the 145 mile front. The U. S. Eighth Army said the largest involved only one Red pla-

Warren's address keynoted a session at which Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson was scheduled to report on Republican prospects for the November Election.

To Present Case

David S. Ingalls, national chairman of the Taft-for-President committee, will present the Ohioan's case at a dinner tonight.

Warren, the 1948 vice presidential nominee, said he believes in trying to carry out party platforms between elections.

"I suggest we make it crystal clear to the American people that the things we advocated for their welfare in the platform are still party concerns and will continue to be so—that we do not intend to turn the clock back—that we are not willing to have present-day inequalities frozen into American life," the California governor said.

He said he doesn't go along with the theory that the people will vote for a change in national government "for the sake of change itself."

Route Is Changed

New City, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Thruway Authority has amended the route of the proposed Thruway in Rockland county, from Nyack to Suffern. James S. Bixby, district engineer of the State Department of Public Works, said the new route will save an estimated $1,200,000 in right-of-way and construction costs. Also, he said, it will result in better grades in the Suffern area and save cutting Suffern into two sections, as originally proposed.

Man Killed in Crash

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—James B. O'Leary, about 50, identified as a Selective Service official of Chester, was killed yesterday in an automobile-train collision outside Middletown. Police said O'Leary's car struck the caboose of an Erie Railroad train at a crossing on the road's Pine Bush branch line.

Won't Prevent Locking

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 17 (AP)—An Iranian spokesman said today Britain's protest will "not prevent the closing of British consulates in Iran." The spokesman told reporters Iran would make clear in the current diplomatic exchanges that maintenance of consulates must be based upon mutual consent.

Throng Cheers Carlsen From Bay to City Hall

Confetti and Ticker-Tape Shower Avenue and Thousands Line Sidewalks—Says Entire Matter Seems Unreal to Him

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen rode up Broadway today amid waves of cheers for his stout courage.

Over and over, came the shout: "Well done."

It was New York city's rousing salute to a man whose dauntless love of his ship had made him a hero to the world.

Clouds of confetti and streamers of ticker-tape snowed from skyscraper windows as Carlsen began his journey up the big city's traditional "Canyon of Heroes."

Thousands roared their tribute to the modest, little skipper, who for 15 days defied the storms of the Atlantic in a vain battle to bring his listing and cracked ship, the Flying Enterprise, to shore. Passengers and crew had abandoned her and only a British sailor from a rescue tug had shared the ship's final days with him.

He lost his ship, but won a high place in the annals of seafaring men.

And today, he rode up the path where other champions had passed—flier Charles A. Lindbergh, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, explorer Richard E. Byrd, "Blackjack" Pershing, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"I am really completely overwhelmed," the captain said embarrassedly. "I am completely amazed. I couldn't sleep last night. I realize now how much trouble I stirred up."

As the car carried him along the bunting-draped street, he grinned, nodded and gave his shy,

Studio and Music Go Up in Flames

New Paltz Composer Also Loses Concert Piano Wednesday Night

New Paltz, Jan. 17—A valuable library of music and a concert grand piano of a recognized woman composer were destroyed here Wednesday night, when a chicken house converted into a studio went up in flames.

Fire spread from an oil stove explosion, according to Fire Chief Isaac Pole, about two hours after Miss Marga Richter had left her place on the property of Mrs. Basil Ellison, Butterville road.

Chief Pole said the oil stove was left burning to keep dampness from ruining the highly prized piano.

Due for Conference

Miss Richter was said to be due for a conference in New York relative to the playing of one of her compositions next May.

Aid Needed For Success Of Project

Not After Comfort

His Visit Not Predicated on Making Life Easy for Britons, He Says

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Winston Churchill told Congress today the United States can count on the British to do their part in the defense of Europe.

The British Prime Minister said, however, American help is necessary if Britain is to meet the defense production goals it has set.

Speaking to a joint session of House and Senate in the historic House chamber, he declared "it is for you to judge" how much aid Britain should receive.

Will Make Big Effort

But whether the United States provides "much or little," Churchill declared, the British nations will continue to make a maximum effort to strengthen the defenses of the free world.

Of aid, Chuzchill said that he had come to the United States to ask "not for gold, but for steel, not for favors but for equipment."

This is necessary, he declared, not to aid British recovery, in which he expressed confidence, but to assist Britain in building its defenses.

He does not ask aid, he emphasized, to "make life more comfortable" for Britons.

Churchill was greeted by thunderous cheers when he came before the legislators. In the packed galleries were diplomats of many nations.

President Is Absent

President Truman, leaving the spotlight of the moment entirely to his British visitor, was not present. But Mrs. Truman was in the presidential gallery.

It was the third address Churchill has delivered to the U. S. Congress as prime minister of Britain. He spoke before it twice during World War 2—on Dec. 26, 1941, and again on March 19, 1943.

He alluded to this early in his address, speaking of it as his "good fortune."

He recalled, too, an address he made at Fulton, Mo., and requoted in part the words he spoke then:

"Let no one underrate the abiding power of the British empire."

He added:

"I am very glad to say the same to you here today."

Churchill spoke of the many changes in international relationships that have developed since World War 2.

He noted that some former enemies now are allies and some former allies now are antagonistic.

Not Fault of West

Speaking of Communist Russia, he said:

"It is not the fault of the western powers, if a great gulf has opened between us."

Expressing confidence the western world can meet any threat, he said that if the English speaking nations combine their industry and science "there will be no quivering balance of power to offer temptation to aggression."

Churchill noted that the United States had expected China to be one of the "big four" after the last war, and added:

"I was always a bit skeptical."

The prime minister said that although communism now controls the Chinese mainland, eventually he expects China to throw off communism.

Truck Tax Due Soon

Albany, Jan. 17—Monday, January 21, is another "due date" for motor carriers subject to the New York state truck mileage tax, the State Tax Commission reminded carriers today. The report due Monday will be the third monthly mileage tax return under the new law. The reports are due the 20th of each month covering truck operations in the previous calendar month. Inasmuch as the 20th of January falls on Sunday, carriers have an extra day in which to report their December operations.

Democrats Agree With GOP Tax Boost Is Out This Year

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Influential Democrats agreed with Republicans today that a fourth post-Korean tax boost is practically an impossibility in this election year.

At least one important Democrat expressed doubt that Congress would even go through the formality of holding hearings on President Truman's request for another five billion dollars in taxes.

By contrast, the outlook was bright for extension of the Defense Production Act, the basis for price, production and credit controls which was the other headliner in the President's annual economic report sent to Congress yesterday.

Even here, it seemed likely the President would have to settle for a one-year extension instead of two, and that the law might not be tightened up in the ways he recommended.

In the face of adverse statements by leading tax legislators of his own party in recent weeks, there was considerable surprise on Capitol Hill that Mr. Truman even asked for a new tax program.

His recommendation, yet to be detailed in the budget or a special message, called for an additional load of around five billion dollars. He said this could be obtained "by eliminating loopholes and special privileges, and by some tax rate increases."

American Jets Down Three And Destroy Three Tanks

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—American jet pilots were credited with downing three Red jets today, two of them without firing a shot. They also destroyed three Communist tanks near Kaesong, former site of armistice talks.

Two acrobatic Sabre jet pilots were credited with the gunless air victory. The U. S. Fifth Air Force said they outmaneuvered two MIG-15s so badly the Red jets apparently went "into a high speed stall from which they were unable to recover."

The Red pilots bailed out and their planes crashed. The third MIG was shot down by Lt. Col. James B. Raebel of Redfield, S. D. Another Red jet was damaged in a series of air battles.

Two young lieutenants on their first combat missions burned out the three Russian-type T-34 tanks near Kaesong. They said their fire bombs turned the tanks into "gutted hulks." A fourth was damaged.

The two Shooting Star pilots—2nd Lieuts. George Patterson of Orlando, Fla., and Robert E. Railey of Oakland, Md.—said they spotted the tanks just outside the restricted area surrounding Kaesong.

The Communists charged that American planes early today attacked the Kaesong protected zone, now headquarters of the Red truce delegation.

There was no report of any major action on the snow-covered ground. Eight small fights broke out on the 145 mile front. The U. S. Eighth Army said the largest involved only one Red pla-

Cream of Celery Soup Serves Many Uses

Heinz Adds Cream Of Celery Soup

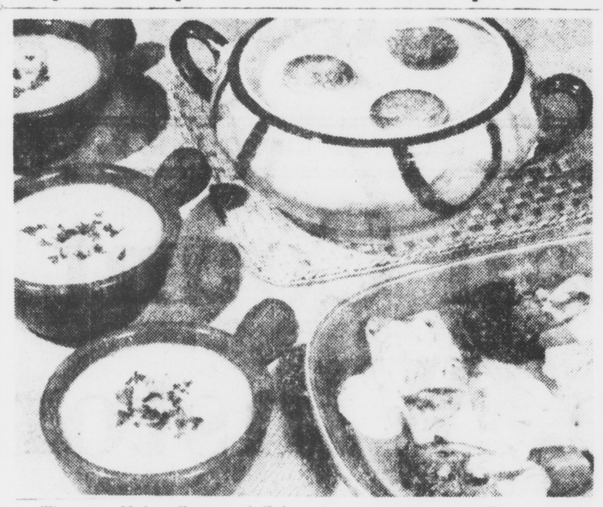
The new year brings a new Heinz soup to the market. This one—the fifteenth in the nationally distributed line — is cream of celery.

The secret of a good celery soup, you know, is using really FRESH celery. And that's exactly what the Heinz people do. From the rich, moist fields around their Medina, New York plant, sweet, crisp, celery is hurried to the factory kitchens for immediate processing. Cleaned and cut, then cooked but slightly so as not to damage flavor or texture, the garden-fresh celery is combined with thick, rich country cream and garnished with carrots and onions. Final cooking and blending of flavors is done once the soup is sealed in tin.

It's a delicately rich soup, spiced most discriminately. And it's oh-so-satin-smooth. The chefs of this leading food company have made certain of this by actually homogenizing the cream. You'll have a hard time duplicating this silken blend. And you'll have an even harder time finding a more versatile soup anywhere.

Diluted with milk or water, it's the perfect introduction to a full-course meal, but it's equally sustaining served in a more generous portion as a luncheon partner with a meat or fish sandwich. Selling at lower prices than most creams, it makes an economical s-t-r-e-t-c-h for cream of tomato, mushroom, chicken, green pea, and the like.

Cream of celery soup heated just as it comes from the can — thinned down a bit with water or milk, perhaps—makes a tempting sauce for vegetables, eggs, fish, or meat loaf. Use it in place of a temperamental white sauce. It saves time and money, lends added flavor.



The new Heinz Cream of Celery is a versatile soup. Serve it just as it comes from the can; add corn and potatoes for a stout, sustaining chowder; or use it as a sauce for fish or vegetables.

Weekly Food Review

(By The Associated Press)

Retail prices of some brands of coffee and ice cream advanced a little in many stores this week, and the boosts were expected to become more general in the weeks ahead.

Most shortening and margarine brands, on the other hand, declined one or two cents a pound, reflecting recent reductions in raw materials costs. Salad oils also were a trifle lower.

Prices of both eggs and butter leveled off after last week's declines, and butter even turned upward in some places as consumer price resistance faded.

Meats and poultry held about steady. Smoked hams, pork loin cuts and frozen fish were stressed by several store chains and large independent markets for week-end advertised specials.

Some Vegetables Down

On most fresh produce counters, snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, lettuce and grapefruit were marked down slightly, while beets, carrots, cucumbers and peppers edged higher. Tangerines, apples, eggplant, escarole, endives, kale, radishes and spinach, were plentiful generally. Volume shipments of lima beans got under way this week. Tomatoes were offered in a wide quality range, with the best bringing fairly high prices. Latest arrivals of lettuce showed much improved quality over recent shipments.

The cent-a-pound boost in prices of a few nationally advertised brands of coffee was the first major change in roasted coffee in about a year, although there had been some temporary fluctuations —called "competitive adjustments" by the trade. Rising prices of green coffee were blamed for the advance.

Ice Cream Is Up

Ice cream went up one to two cents a quart in several cities. Producers cited rising dairy products costs and other charges.

The Agriculture Department's production and marketing division recommended that food shoppers give special attention to ducks as a menu attraction during the next three weeks because of the abundant supply. More than 11 million pounds of commercially-grown ducks are ready for market.

Other most-plentiful foods for thrifty buying this week, PMA said, are frozen ocean perch, frozen whiting, fresh oranges and tangerines.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Association this week proposed an amendment to the Federal Pure Foods Laws, to require a waiting period of 60 days before any new chemicals may be added to manufactured foods. The proposal was presented in behalf of most of the country's chemical and food producing companies, at an inter-industry conference on "chemicals in foods" at New York.

Such a law, said an association committee after two years of study, would give the government time to test the new chemicals and protect the public against hasty or ill-advised use of those found to be questionable.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It is going to be difficult to keep our feet anywhere near the ground over the coming months. Instead of the "stability" which so many expect, the Ruminator ventures to guess that we shall be hopping about quite excitedly.

In addition to the explosive areas of the world that will keep the international situation on tenter hooks, we have at home not only a regular election year but one during which no one seems likely to know just who is running for office.

For example, the Wall Street Journal has come out with a special copyrighted article professing to know that General Eisenhower actually is not interested in the Presidency—and that he will not come over here to campaign (prior to the Republican convention). He just isn't interested, claims this special story from a staff correspondent in Paris. If you believe this then you know that Ike is not playing footsy or trying to be cagey. On the other hand, his backers assert he does want to be President, but duty compels him to remain in France. So there you are. If this continues it will cause no end of confusion among those voters who would like to see the 20-year New-Deal aggregation broken up so that a new crowd can take over.

On the face of it, perhaps this doesn't seem very important. However, it is, because of the immensity of the problems which confront us. We are playing with dynamite every day. The dynamite could explode into further war and destruction, or it could explode into a fearful inflation and destruction. Either one is awful to contemplate.

So I don't think we can treat any of the current events—domestic or international—lightly. We cannot simply dismiss things that seem confusing, because any one event could alter the trend of other events.

Those who have really read the President's address on the State of the Union can see clearly enough that his major premise in this election year is going to be the old story of pitting the "Haves" against the "Have-nots." The defense program, for instance, will run into a towering deficit in the next fiscal year (from July 1952 to June 1953). This should be met head-on and the deficit corrected somehow.

If you owe a lot of money and do not see any easy way to pay up and get out of debt you change your plan of living and cut out unnecessary expenses. Or, you find ways to earn more money.

That is what the nation should do. Everyone admits that. But that kind of talk isn't good conversation in an election year. Higher taxes just won't go. They are too high already.

What is the solution, then? Either cut down the program to fit the income, or cut out expenses that will bring down the outgo.

If we face a $15 billion deficit in the next fiscal year, it will certainly not add to the stability and comfortable prosperity people talk about.

The Ruminator does not know why he is writing along like this, because everyone knows about this. Yet, we all seem to accept it without a murmur. And still, if we stop to give it a few moments' consideration we'll know that a situation like the one confronting us will affect every single household in America.

Public opinion has often been aroused in this country. When it is, they listed in Washington. Maybe we can help in a small way to arouse public opinion. Maybe we can help a little by writing notes to our senators and members of Congress, asking them for heaven's sake to take their glance off the elections long enough to give some thought to where the nation is heading.

Perhaps we might jot down this comment of Thomas Jefferson's and send it to our congressmen: "I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest of dangers to be feared. To preserve our independence, we must not let our leaders load us with perpetual debt. We must make our choice between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude. . . ."

Let's forget who is running for President until, say, June. It is unimportant now because the situation is too confused. Between now and June maybe we can use our small influence to arouse public opinion to the really serious issues of "war" and "debt." Either can ruin us.

DuMondRe-Named By Farm Society

C. Chester DuMond, Jr., of Ulster Park, was reelected president of the Ulster County Agricultural Society at a meeting Monday night at the Farm Bureau office. Harry J. Beatty and Ira N. Saxe were elected vice-presidents, Pratt Boice, treasurer; and Albert Kurdt, secretary. This is the organization which conducts the Ulster county fair at Forsyth Park.

The election of officers followed an open membership meeting at which the following six directors were reelected: Harry J. Beatty, Otto Mollenhauer, Howard Anderson, Franklin Kelder, Frank G. Elliott and Mrs. Louis Gippert.

A general discussion of the 1952 fair to be held Aug. 20 and 21 took place and the following department superintendents were appointed: John Roosa, horses; Harry J. Beatty, Gordon Boice, Ira N. Saxe and Daniel Barnhart, cattle; Frank VanDusen, poultry; Raphael Klein, fruits and vegetables; W. T. Hookey, Grange; Mrs. William E. Powers and Mrs. Robert Campitello, homemaking; and Pratt Boice, 4-H clubs.

The next meeting of the directors and superintendents will take place early in March at which time the final premium list will be approved.

It was reported that the Agricultural Society now owns over $5,000 worth of tents and equipment used in staging the fair. The annual report showed a balance of $209. A note of $6,400 is outstanding against a state reimbursement of $7,092.50, which will be received early in the spring.

Test Plane Muffler

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Tests of a muffler designed to reduce airplane engine noise were made yesterday at Idlewild Airport before a group of borough, city, and federal government agency representatives, and various civic organizations who have complained of low-flying plane noises in airport areas. Exponents of the device claimed that noise reduction was from 12 to 67 per cent.

The United States flag was used in the battle of Cooch's Bridge, Del., Sept. 3, 1777.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It is going to be difficult to keep our feet anywhere near the ground over the coming months. Instead of the "stability" which so many expect, the Ruminator ventures to guess that we shall be hopping about quite excitedly.

In addition to the explosive areas of the world that will keep the international situation on tenter hooks, we have at home not only a regular election year but one during which no one seems likely to know just who is running for office.

For example, the Wall Street Journal has come out with a special copyrighted article professing to know that General Eisenhower actually is not interested in the Presidency—and that he will not come over here to campaign (prior to the Republican convention). FLOW OF INFORMATION

World peace based on world understanding is a happy state of affairs long sought but never achieved. Such understanding must, of course, derive from knowledge.

Knowledge, in turn, must come from a free and honest flow of information between the countries of the world and within the individual countries.

That's been the hitch. Too often barriers of ignorance, prejudice and fear have blocked this flow.

It is heartening, therefore, to note the progress of an organization set up a year ago to smooth the way for better mutual understanding among the peoples of the world.

The organization is the International Press Institute. The chairman of its executive board is Lester Markel, Sunday editor of The New York Times.

Its announced aim is to determine whether individual countries are getting an accurate picture of other countries through their newspapers, and if they are not to try to remedy the situation. To date, national committees composed of leading newspaper editors have been formed in 24 countries.

A main part of their job will be to check and report on threats to press freedom within their individual countries.

The flow of news between countries, with any criticisms as to distortion or general quality, will come under the eyes of officials of the various world press associations.

Fortunately for its future, I.P.I. got off to a sound financial start with a $270,000 grant from the Ford and Rockefeller foundations for expenses the first three years. All it has to do now is turn in a record of sustained accomplishment.

The U. S. State Department, with its world-wide information service to newspapers of other countries, is telling America's story throughout the world, but as a government agency with a definite ax to grind, it has its limitations.

By policing and strengthening themselves, the world's established press and news services can offer their readers a quality product that can't be matched.

I.P.I. can go a long way toward establishing this quality.

ATOMIC DIPLOMACY

In order to bring their own proposal for prohibition of atomic weapons and limitation of other armaments before the United Nations again, the Russians have made a very small concession in the direction of the American position that effective international inspection must be a part of any plan for control of atomic weapons. Foreign Minster Andre Vishinsky indicates that Russia would be willing to permit entry to inspectors, but wouldn't expect the inspectors to interfere with anything they might find going on.

The concession isn't enough to do any good. But it suggests that Russian diplomacy is still motivated, at least part of the time, by a healty respect for the American atomic bomb, and a wish that it were out of the way.

Layoffs already begun and expected to rise may give New York State as much as 25 per cent of all the unemployment in the nation before the first six months of 1952 are out. Thereafter, expanding defense production in upstate industrial areas and a filtering into New York of demand for consumer goods from defense boom areas are expected to take up job slack resulting from plant conversion and the impact of materials controls on the state's heavy consumer goods economy.

Disraeli pointed out that nature has given us two ears but only one mouth. Yet some persons manage to pour out through the one opening much more than they ever take in through the two.

Commercial gamblers are now required to own federal tax stamps, but that doesn't mean they are merely harmless stamp collectors. They prefer to collect bets.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

TIN AND RUBBER

Great Britain is now very worried about Malaya, which is a very rich country, rich in tin and rubber. Its great city is Singapore.

The British believed before World War II that Singapore was impregnable. The Japanese took it with little effort. Now the British have it back and it is a rich place. And the great commodities that are sold to whoever will buy—the United States or Soviet Russia—are tin and rubber. The British would not enjoy losing all the advantages of controlling tin and rubber.

The principal customer is the United States, which pays enormously for both tin and rubber. W. Stuart Symington resigned from the headship of the RFC, it is reported, because he and the State Department quarrelled over the price of tin. The RFC was buying tin so that this country would not be without when the lanes of traffic in the Pacific are cut by war. But the British have a high price for tin, higher than is reasonable, but not higher than the United States will pay so that dollars may be accumulated in Great Britain. This price is now an indirect subsidy paid by the United States.

The Chinese Communists want that rubber and tin. They want it for themselves and they want it for Soviet Russia. Also, and this is important, if they can control Malaya, and from Malaya, Indonesia, they can prevent the United States from getting any tin and rubber from southeast Asia. It would be very tough on the United States if this country failed to get tin and rubber.

One of the outstanding mistakes made in 1945, when the great statesmen made so many mistakes, was that they ditched Holland and gave Indonesia encouragement for freedom. And the Indonesian Republic was established in 1949, with its 75,000,000 people and its great wealth. Today, if the Dutch held those islands, they might be a base for our defenses, as the Philippines and Formosa form bases. Now it is not clear how Indonesia would stand if the Chinese Communists march on Malaya.

And one of the troubles in this whole situation is that Singapore is as much Chinese as it is Malayan. Chinese from Fukien and Kwantung provinces settled in Singapore. Many of them are very rich. Many are poor. They are puzzled as to whether they should support Chiang Kai-shek or Mao Tze-tung. But most of all, they want to trade with China.

If the British had not been so anxious to recognize Communist China, most of the Singapore Chinese would have supported Chiang Kai-shek as they had done since 1925, but they live in a British country and follow the course of their rulers. Into their ranks, the Chinese Communists infiltrated with great skill.

And now that situation turns on the British like a frightful calamity, because not only are the Chinese Communists marching on Malaya from the outside, but they are thick inside Malaya. They are crawling all over the place, killing men, setting fire to plantations, slowing up work, committing every outrage of guerrilla warfare. The Chinese are smarter than the Malays, and can teach them tricks.

This is one of the great worries of Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden and has caused conferences at the State Department and the White House. And in the President's speech and in the joint Churchill-Truman statement, Malaya becomes an item like Korea. And as has been said, if the Chinese Communists hit at Malaya, it will be a fight like Korea.

But who will fight?

Will it be another "police action" of the United Nations or will it be war involving the United States and Great Britain? The probability is that nobody will ever try a "police action" again; nobody will permit a lot of diplomats, Arabs and South Americans and such to decide what is to be done about American troops. The British will not like that, although they did like it in Korea.

There is the Malayan situation, perhaps oversimplified; yet in essence, it is the whole of the story. There is blood on the moon in the southeast of Asia unless the battle is on the mainland of China.

General Douglas MacArthur, who fought over all the island in southeast Asia, understood that when he wanted to bomb Manchuria. It would have been an easier fight in Manchuria than it ever can be in the Malayan jungle.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MENTAL AND EMOTIONAL CATHARTIC

When we think of a physician prescribing a "cathartic," we have in mind a dose of calomel or epsom salts. This cathartic not only clears out the large intestine (colon) but also takes away some poisonous wastes from the blood. The draggy feeling caused by an overloaded colon is caused not only by the wastes or poisons in the colon but also by the stretching or pulling of its nerves. The patient always feels more buoyant in body and mind when he has received a cathartic.

What many of us never realize is that just as the body needs a cathartic at times, so also does the brain and nervous system, with its depressing emotions, need a cathartic. In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur (Stanford University) states that it is believed that one-third to two-thirds of all patients who seek medical help have as the most significant cause of ill health an emotional or neurotic (nervous) disturbance. Nervousness and fatigue are among the commonest symptoms, others are sighing, difficulty in getting a deep breath, worry about heart and blood pressure, inability to concentrate and remember, inability to work or react for prolonged periods and disappearance of symptoms at night with rest in bed, history of a nervous breakdown in patient or family, and excessive emotional reactions are common.

"Adequate history, thorough physical examination and necessary laboratory and X-ray studies should be made to convince the physician of the diagnosis," Dr. Wilbur writes. This complete examination does two things (1) gives the physician an excellent idea of the type of person with whom he is dealing and serves as a good "mental cathartic" as the patient develops confidence in the physician, because of the thoroughness of the examination and the physician's willingness to answer all his questions. Rest of mind and body is the first thought. The physician, understanding the nervous and emotional make-up of the patient, can help him to take hold of himself and work out the patient's own methods of meeting his difficulties.

These patients are tired from overwork and nervous strain without sufficient rest or vacations. Such patients (especially busy mothers) must be shown the need and helpfulness of an hour or two of rest during the day, an extra hour of sleep at night, or a few days of complete change of their surroundings.

Chivalry Is Not Dead

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—It didn't leak to the press, but at the President's first luncheon for Winston Churchill, the 77-year-old prime minister got some friendly advice from the only guest older than he.

The adviser was 84-year-old Sen. Francis Green of Rhode Island, who, despite his age, is even more active than Churchill, and who during the luncheon gently told the P.M. about moves toward a United States of Europe made at the Strasbourg conference.

Green recently served as co-chairman with Paul Spaak of Belgium, over the consultative assembly of the Council of Europe, attended by 14 U. S. senators and congressmen, plus delegates from all parts of Europe. And the Rhode Island senator was quite eloquent in describing the pleas for unity made by the delegates—and their disappointment over British opposition.

Most U. S. congressmen attending the Strasbourg conference came away determined that future American aid to Europe should be tied to a proviso that Europe unite. Even conservative Democrats Gene Cox of Georgia and Howard Smith of Virginia made speeches praising European unity and criticising British aloofness.

Diplomatic Senator Green did not bear down too hard on this during the President's lunch for Churchill, but tried to get his point across by saying:

"Your delegate Robert Boothby did as well as he could with the material he had."

Churchill grunted.

"Good man Boothby," he said. Then with pride in his own political party, he added: "He's a Conservative."

Senator Green's hint, however, had no effect upon the Churchill-Truman conferences that followed. The prime minister paid nothing more than lip-service to European unity.

Churchill's Broken Pieces

During the Strasbourg conference, British delegate Boothby in opposing a United States of Europe argued:

"The finest unity the world has ever seen was that between Churchill and Roosevelt when they met together to decide the problems of the world."

To this Congressman Frazier Reams of Toledo, O., took exception.

"I have the greatest respect for both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill," he told the Strasbourg assembly, "but most of eastern Europe is littered with broken pieces of the policies they left behind."

Two-Man Parley

Diplomats who watched the venerable British statesman in Washington couldn't escape the impression that Churchill still believes the problems of the world should be settled between two men only.

Diplomats who watched Churchill in other conferences also remembered, however, how obstructionist he could be when Roosevelt would not yield, and how some of the decisions he insisted upon completely upset the peace of the world. Here are some of them:

Error in China—Meeting with Chiang Kai-shek and FDR in one of their famed conferences (Cairo in 1943) Roosevelt felt the urgent need of strengthening Chiang. His army had been fighting the Japanese longer than any other. Already he faced desertions to the Communists. So FDR urged an allied campaign over the Burma Road to rescue China. . . . But Churchill was vigorously opposed. He would hear none of it. Instead he wanted an allied campaign to retake Britain's old possessions Singapore and the Malays—at this Chiang got sore, threatened to pull out altogether, and it took a lot of persuading by FDR to keep him in Cairo. To placate him FDR proposed that Britain give up Hong Kong, make it an international port under the U.N. . . . Churchill's reply: "I was not made prime minister to liquidate the British Empire." . . . Chiang, returning empty-handed, faced increasing defections to the Communists. . . . Real fact is that for Chiang, Cairo marked the beginning of the end. . . . Incidentally Hong Kong, still British, supplied the Communists with part of their gas and oil to oppose us in Korea.

Error in Greece—At Casablanca, Churchill got from FDR a promise that the Mediterranean was to be a British theatre, with all commands and political decisions clearing through British hands. This meant not only a British top commander for Allied forces in Italy—though most of the troops were American—but it meant that not even a telegram could be sent in the Mediterranean theatre without a British OK. . . . One result was gross mismanagement in Greece. Churchill backed the wrong leaders, got the country involved in civil war, eventually sent a telegram that shocked the world. . . . "Do not hesitate to act as if you were in a conquered city," Churchill wired the British commander in Athens. "You should not hesitate to open fire on any armed male in the Greek capital who assails the authority of the British. . . . Keep and dominate Athens." . . . Eventually this policy failed. It failed so miserably that London gave the United States peremptory notice it was turning the future of Greece over to us. . . . Since then we have been running Greece—at a cost of about one billion dollars a year—some of which could have been saved if we had followed the old adage, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Iran and Egypt—Diplomats also recall the manner in which Churchill secured from Roosevelt full control of policy in Egypt, Iran and the Middle East. The result of that policy, partly spelled out in Egyptian riots and closed British consulates in Iran, is too fresh to need repetition here. . . . But the manner in which American wartime commanders backed up British supremacy, may have been forgotten. Gen. Benny Giles, lecturing U. S. newsmen who criticized British policy in Cairo in 1943, said: "Gentlemen, I have noticed that you have been writing political news. You are war correspondents, and you will write nothing critical of British policy in the Middle East."

Steel Wage Request Reveals Why CIO Advocates High Business Taxes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 17—For a long time there has been curiosity in many quarters as to why the CIO has always been in the forefront of those groups which advocate the imposition of high tax rates for business and especially excess-profits taxes.

Now the answer has come in a declaration by the CIO Steelworkers union in connection with its case presented to the Wage Stabilization Board for a substantial increase in hourly wages.

The union, through its research department, states flatly that the large steel companies could raise wages 50 cents an hour and pay the added cost out of excess profits without raising prices. The actual request is for an 18½-cent hourly increase.

What this means, of course, is that, because Uncle Sam is taking approximately 70 per cent in excess-profits taxes out of current profits of companies, the government would be paying 70 per cent of the added cost. Thus the government would be deprived of revenue it would otherwise get if there were no such substntial deductions—for wages are, indeed, one of the major items which can be deducted before income is determined, and it is only on net income that taxes are imposed.

What the steel union is saying is that the taxpayers as a whole will have to be taxed to make up deficits which might not otherwise occur in the U. S. Treasury if so much of the gross income were not paid out in the form of expenses.

There are many persons in business today who are advocating extravagances, or rather increased expenditures, mostly on the ground that all these are deductible anyway and that Uncle Sam is virtually paying 70 per cent of the bill and the company itself only 30 per cent. This is fallacious reasoning because the cost of the products sold then has to be increased anyway, since the tendency in modern business is to maintain the same quantity of profit money, if possible, in order to give the shareholder or investor a fair return on his investment.

What isn't generally realized is that corporation profits are taxed twice—as profits, and when they are paid to individuals, too. This means that the net income to individual stockholders grows correspondingly less. Hence it is essential, if the private capital system is to be maintained, that the investment of risk capital be encouraged instead of discouraged. The alternative is state socialism—the precursor of communism.

When the labor unions say that it doesn't matter how much of a wage increase is sought, as the companies can pay them out of excess profits anyhow, they are forgetting that there comes a time when excess-profits laws are repealed—it has happened twice now within the last few decades—but the wage rates are never repealed or revised downward.

So whatever wage scales are established now stick for all time unless there is a severe depression. The national ecenomy will have to adjust itself—once the armament boom is over—to a lower demand for steel but the costs of production will remain high, so that reduced prices to the public, which always come as demand slackens, will not be the aid to a reconstruction economy that they have been in the past.

The net effect of the CIO steelworkers' assumption that higher wage rates can be paid out of excess profits without increasing prices is to argue that the interests of the United State government and the taxpayers as a whole are secondary and that stockholders must take a cut in their dividends at the very time that their incomes are being sharply reduced through higher income-tax rates.

Coincidentally, the increased income to the workers enlarges considerably the purchasing power of the nation and intensifies the current inflation. Sound economics nowadays is a forgotten science as group after group seeks a virtual subsidy at the expense of other citizens, especially at the expense of those who are penalized by higher and higher tax rates.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Paris—The world would have known about 25 minutes earlier General Eisenhower's decision to accept a nomination from the Republican convention but for an unfortunate mishap which should be, henceforth, a calculated risk of this mechanical age. Brigadier General Buck Lanham's zipper got rammed just as he was about to read General Eisenhower's formal statement to a large gathering of journalists of assorted nationalities and seven newsreel cameras in an office in the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe. General Lanham is an infantry soldier, but there are many engineers and technicians in the supreme headquarters so, for the first few moments, this caprice of a temperamental mechanism seemed unimportant.

"Alors, it makes nothing," General Lanham said with magnificent savior faire, for he has been studying French in compliance with a firm official policy which requires all hands to speak French. One advantage of this policy is that it enables Americans and British to understand one another. Another is that when a general's zipper gets its transmission fouled he can face the situation with sang froid. General Lanham wears the combat infantry badge and the Purple Heart and his right leg below the knee is stuck on with Scotch tape but he never felt more uneasy in battle than he did when he nonchalantly grabbed the latch on his zipper and gave it a yank and nothing happened.

A young lady who works in an adjoining office, sorting telephone calls for General Lanham, tactfully asked "is there anything wrong, general? Is there anything I can do?"

"The answers are 'yes' and 'no,' in that order," General Lanham said. "Please close the door and go away and please tell them there will be a slight delay in the release of General Eisenhower's statement."

General Lanham is the press officer of SHAPE and, although he is crowded with honors, nevertheless, you well might says that his entire career, his whole life had been pointed at this critical moment, the only time in history when a brigadier general of the American Army was called upon to be prompt, efficient and prepared for any eventuality, in the acceptance by a five-star general of the Republican nomination, if any, if and when, it should be proffered by the 1952 convention.

Someone had blundered. Afterward, friends of General Lanham, thinking of Kimmel and Short and others who had suffered for failures beyond their power to fortend, were inclined to suspect sabotage by someone in the employ of the dry-cleaner who does the general's uniforms.

But, why alors? Alors is a French word meaning "bring me the bread well toasted and the butter and the confiture." It means everything. So why, alors, would an employee in the establishment of the reparationer of the pantaloons of soldiers commit sabotage on the General Lanham's zipper? A Taft Republican, perhaps, my old one? Don't be an old fool, my old one. There are no Taft Republicans here. Ah, but a Communist, is it not? Truly, for why not a Communist? But who else would have a motive to mash together by force the mechanism of the zipper which makes the aperture of the pantalons of the General Lanham that it would not close?

As alarm spread through the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, blanched lips whispered: "Call for volunteers. All 32-inch waisted officers with zippers in good working order willing to lend pants to meet emergency report to General Lanham." In French: "Alors! Alons! The zipper of the General Lanham it marches not!"

A lady secretary, chancing in on Major Mulkey, an aide to Major General John C. Persons, asked the major if he would consider—well, there was a crisis in General Lanham's office and the major's waist measure was about the same, and—

Major Mulkey's reasoning was this: "After all, I wear a conventional army officer's blouse. General Lanham wears that stylish Eisenhower battle-jacket. If anything happens, with my kind of blouse who is the wiser? But no, these Joes like to strut their skinny waistlines and if a zipper snafus without any front on the jacket that is their problem. Bismarck would have thought of the last boot latch. For lack of a nail a shoe was lost: For the loss of a shoe a horse was lost, and so forth until a war was lost. Let that be a lesson."

Major Mulkey kept his trousers on in this crisis. A Scottish officer saw General Lanham ogling his kilt in a sinister way and took evasive action.

The hero of the crisis was Colonel Jock Lawrence, of New York and Hollywood, a press relations officer who seems to have taken domestic science in high school. Colonel Lawrence charged into the breach, as it were, with an old copy of that sewing kit which was issued to GI's in the late war, known as a housewife. Let us avert our eyes while Colonel Lawrence with magnificent initiative and quick, sure stitches, closed the gap and saved the day.

General Lanham then called the press conference and with that sang froid, that je ne sais quois, that, if one may say so, dolce far niente for which he is noted, delivered the elocution which, who knows the contrary, annunciated the next president of the United States.

"It was nothing," Colonel Lawrence said. "A simple little stitch I learned from Dave Dubinsky."

FLOW OF INFORMATION

World peace based on world understanding is a happy state of affairs long sought but never achieved. Such understanding must, of course, derive from knowledge.

Knowledge, in turn, must come from a free and honest flow of information between the countries of the world and within the individual countries.

That's been the hitch. Too often barriers of ignorance, prejudice and fear have blocked this flow.

It is heartening, therefore, to note the progress of an organization set up a year ago to smooth the way for better mutual understanding among the peoples of the world.

The organization is the International Press Institute. The chairman of its executive board is Lester Markel, Sunday editor of The New York Times.

Its announced aim is to determine whether individual countries are getting an accurate picture of other countries through their newspapers, and if they are not to try to remedy the situation. To date, national committees composed of leading newspaper editors have been formed in 24 countries.

A main part of their job will be to check and report on threats to press freedom within their individual countries.

The flow of news between countries, with any criticisms as to distortion or general quality, will come under the eyes of officials of the various world press associations.

Fortunately for its future, I.P.I. got off to a sound financial start with a $270,000 grant from the Ford and Rockefeller foundations for expenses the first three years. All it has to do now is turn in a record of sustained accomplishment.

The U. S. State Department, with its world-wide information service to newspapers of other countries, is telling America's story throughout the world, but as a government agency with a definite ax to grind, it has its limitations.

By policing and strengthening themselves, the world's established press and news services can offer their readers a quality product that can't be matched.

I.P.I. can go a long way toward establishing this quality.

ATOMIC DIPLOMACY

In order to bring their own proposal for prohibition of atomic weapons and limitation of other armaments before the United Nations again, the Russians have made a very small concession in the direction of the American position that effective international inspection must be a part of any plan for control of atomic weapons. Foreign Minster Andre Vishinsky indicates that Russia would be willing to permit entry to inspectors, but wouldn't expect the inspectors to interfere with anything they might find going on.

The concession isn't enough to do any good. But it suggests that Russian diplomacy is still motivated, at least part of the time, by a healty respect for the American atomic bomb, and a wish that it were out of the way.

Layoffs already begun and expected to rise may give New York State as much as 25 per cent of all the unemployment in the nation before the first six months of 1952 are out. Thereafter, expanding defense production in upstate industrial areas and a filtering into New York of demand for consumer goods from defense boom areas are expected to take up job slack resulting from plant conversion and the impact of materials controls on the state's heavy consumer goods economy.

TIN AND RUBBER

Great Britain is now very worried about Malaya, which is a very rich country, rich in tin and rubber. Its great city is Singapore.

The British believed before World War II that Singapore was impregnable. The Japanese took it with little effort. Now the British have it back and it is a rich place. And the great commodities that are sold to whoever will buy—the United States or Soviet Russia—are tin and rubber. The British would not enjoy losing all the advantages of controlling tin and rubber.

The principal customer is the United States, which pays enormously for both tin and rubber. W. Stuart Symington resigned from the headship of the RFC, it is reported, because he and the State Department quarrelled over the price of tin. That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MENTAL AND EMOTIONAL CATHARTIC

When we think of a physician prescribing a "cathartic," we have in mind a dose of calomel or epsom salts. This cathartic not only clears out the large intestine (colon) but also takes away some poisonous wastes from the blood. The draggy feeling caused by an overloaded colon is caused not only by the wastes or poisons in the colon but also by the stretching or pulling of its nerves. The patient always feels more buoyant in body and mind when he has received a cathartic.

What many of us never realize is that just as the body needs a cathartic at times, so also does the brain and nervous system, with its depressing emotions, need a cathartic. In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur (Stanford University) states that it is believed that one-third to two-thirds of all patients who seek medical help have as the most significant cause of ill health an emotional or neurotic (nervous) disturbance. Nervousness and fatigue are among the commonest symptoms, others are sighing, difficulty in getting a deep breath, worry about heart and blood pressure, inability to concentrate and remember, inability to work or react for prolonged periods and disappearance of symptoms at night with rest in bed, history of a nervous breakdown in patient or family, and excessive emotional reactions are common.

"Adequate history, thorough physical examination and necessary laboratory and X-ray studies should be made to convince the physician of the diagnosis," Dr. Wilbur writes. This complete examination does two things (1) gives the physician an excellent idea of the type of person with whom he is dealing and serves as a good "mental cathartic" as the patient develops confidence in the physician, because of the thoroughness of the examination and the physician's willingness to answer all his questions. Rest of mind and body is the first thought. The physician, understanding the nervous and emotional make-up of the patient, can help him to take hold of himself and work out the patient's own methods of meeting his difficulties.

These patients are tired from overwork and nervous strain without sufficient rest or vacations. Such patients (especially busy mothers) must be shown the need and helpfulness of an hour or two of rest during the day, an extra hour of sleep at night, or a few days of complete change of their surroundings.

Chivalry Is Not Dead

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—It didn't leak to the press, but at the President's first luncheon for Winston Churchill, the 77-year-old prime minister got some friendly advice from the only guest older than he.

The adviser was 84-year-old Sen. Francis Green of Rhode Island, who, despite his age, is even more active than Churchill, and who during the luncheon gently told the P.M. about moves toward a United States of Europe made at the Strasbourg conference.

Green recently served as co-chairman with Paul Spaak of Belgium, over the consultative assembly of the Council of Europe, attended by 14 U. S. senators and congressmen, plus delegates from all parts of Europe. And the Rhode Island senator was quite eloquent in describing the pleas for unity made by the delegates—and their disappointment over British opposition.

Most U. S. congressmen attending the Strasbourg conference came away determined that future American aid to Europe should be tied to a proviso that Europe unite. Even conservative Democrats Gene Cox of Georgia and Howard Smith of Virginia made speeches praising European unity and criticising British aloofness.

Diplomatic Senator Green did not bear down too hard on this during the President's lunch for Churchill, but tried to get his point across by saying:

"Your delegate Robert Boothby did as well as he could with the material he had."

Churchill grunted.

"Good man Boothby," he said. Then with pride in his own political party, he added: "He's a Conservative."

Senator Green's hint, however, had no effect upon the Churchill-Truman conferences that followed. The prime minister paid nothing more than lip-service to European unity.

Churchill's Broken Pieces

During the Strasbourg conference, British delegate Boothby in opposing a United States of Europe argued:

"The finest unity the world has ever seen was that between Churchill and Roosevelt when they met together to decide the problems of the world."

To this Congressman Frazier Reams of Toledo, O., took exception.

"I have the greatest respect for both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill," he told the Strasbourg assembly, "but most of eastern Europe is littered with broken pieces of the policies they left behind."

Two-Man Parley

Diplomats who watched the venerable British statesman in Washington couldn't escape the impression that Churchill still believes the problems of the world should be settled between two men only.

Diplomats who watched Churchill in other conferences also remembered, however, how obstructionist he could be when Roosevelt would not yield, and how some of the decisions he insisted upon completely upset the peace of the world. Here are some of them:

Error in China—Meeting with Chiang Kai-shek and FDR in one of their famed conferences (Cairo in 1943) Roosevelt felt the urgent need of strengthening Chiang. His army had been fighting the Japanese longer than any other. Already he faced desertions to the Communists. So FDR urged an allied campaign over the Burma Road to rescue China . . . But Churchill was vigorously opposed. He would hear none of it. Instead he wanted an allied campaign to retake Britain's old possessions—Singapore and the Malays—at this. Chiang got sore, threatened to pull out altogether, and it took a lot of persuading by FDR to keep him in Cairo. To placate him FDR proposed that Britain give up Hong Kong, make it an international port under the U.N. . . . Churchill's reply: "I was not made prime minister to liquidate the British Empire." . . . Chiang, returning empty-handed, faced increasing defections to the Communists. . . . Real fact is that for Chiang, Cairo marked the beginning of the end. . . . Incidentally Hong Kong, still British, supplied the Communists with part of their gas and oil to oppose us in Korea.

Error in Greece—At Casablanca, Churchill got from FDR a promise that the Mediterranean was to be a British theatre, with all commands and political decisions clearing through British hands. This meant not only a British top commander for Allied forces in Italy—though most of the troops were American—but it meant that not even a telegram could be sent in the Mediterranean theatre without a British OK. . . . One result was gross mismanagement in Greece. Churchill backed the wrong leaders, got the country involved in civil war, eventually sent a telegram that shocked the world. . . . "Do not hesitate to act as if you were in a conquered city," Churchill wired the British commander in Athens. "You should not hesitate to open fire on any armed male in the Greek capital who assails the authority of the British. . . . Keep and dominate Athens." . . . Eventually this policy failed. It failed so miserably that London gave the United States peremptory notice it was turning the future of Greece over to us. . . . Since then we have been running Greece—at a cost of about one billion dollars a year—some of which could have been saved if we had followed the old adage, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Iran and Egypt—Diplomats also recall the manner in which Churchill secured from Roosevelt full control of policy in Egypt, Iran and the Middle East. The result of that policy, partly spelled out in Egyptian riots and closed British consulates in Iran, is too fresh to need repetition here. . . . But the manner in which American wartime commanders backed up British supremacy, may have been forgotten. Gen. Benny Giles, lecturing U. S. newsmen who criticized British policy in Cairo in 1943, said: "Gentlemen, I have noticed that you have been writing political news. You are war correspondents, and you will write nothing critical of British policy in the Middle East."

Steel Wage Request Reveals Why CIO Advocates High Business Taxes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 17—For a long time there has been curiosity in many quarters as to why the CIO has always been in the forefront of those groups which advocate the imposition of high tax rates for business and especially excess-profits taxes.

Now the answer has come in a declaration by the CIO Steelworkers union in connection with its case presented to the Wage Stabilization Board for a substantial increase in hourly wages.

The union, through its research department, states flatly that the large steel companies could raise wages 50 cents an hour and pay the added cost out of excess profits without raising prices. The actual request is for an 18½-cent hourly increase.

What this means, of course, is that, because Uncle Sam is taking approximately 70 per cent in excess-profits taxes out of current profits of companies, the government would be paying 70 per cent of the added cost. Thus the government would be deprived of revenue it would otherwise get if there were no such substntial deductions—for wages are, indeed, one of the major items which can be deducted before income is determined, and it is only on net income that taxes are imposed.

What the steel union is saying is that the taxpayers as a whole will have to be taxed to make up deficits which might not otherwise occur in the U. S. Treasury if so much of the gross income were not paid out in the form of expenses.

There are many persons in business today who are advocating extravagances, or rather increased expenditures, mostly on the ground that all these are deductible anyway and that Uncle Sam is virtually paying 70 per cent of the bill and the company itself only 30 per cent. This is fallacious reasoning because the cost of the products sold then has to be increased anyway, since the tendency in modern business is to maintain the same quantity of profit money, if possible, in order to give the shareholder or investor a fair return on his investment.

What isn't generally realized is that corporation profits are taxed twice—as profits, and when they are paid to individuals, too. This means that the net income to individual stockholders grows correspondingly less. Hence it is essential, if the private capital system is to be maintained, that the investment of risk capital be encouraged instead of discouraged. The alternative is state socialism—the precursor of communism.

When the labor unions say that it doesn't matter how much of a wage increase is sought, as the companies can pay them out of excess profits anyhow, they are forgetting that there comes a time when excess-profits laws are repealed—it has happened twice now within the last few decades—but the wage rates are never repealed or revised downward.

So whatever wage scales are established now stick for all-time unless there is a severe depression. The national ecenomy will have to adjust itself—once the armament boom is over—to a lower demand for steel but the costs of production will remain high, so that reduced prices to the public, which always come as demand slackens, will not be the aid to a reconstruction economy that they have been in the past.

The net effect of the CIO steelworkers' assumption that higher wage rates can be paid out of excess profits without increasing prices is to argue that the interests of the United State government and the taxpayers as a whole are secondary and that stockholders must take a cut in their dividends at the very time that their incomes are being sharply reduced through higher income-tax rates.

Coincidentally, the increased income to the workers enlarges considerably the purchasing power of the nation and intensifies the current inflation. Sound economics nowadays is a forgotten science as group after group seeks a virtual subsidy at the expense of other citizens, especially at the expense of those who are penalized by higher and higher tax rates.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Paris—The world would have known about 25 minutes earlier General Eisenhower's decision to accept a nomination from the Republican convention but for an unfortunate mishap which should be, henceforth, a calculated risk of this mechanical age. Brigadier General Buck Lanham's zipper got rammed just as he was about to read General Eisenhower's formal statement to a large gathering of journalists of assorted nationalities and seven newsreel cameras in an office in the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe. General Lanham is an infantry soldier, but there are many engineers and technicians in the supreme headquarters so, for the first few moments, this caprice of a temperamental mechanism seemed unimportant.

"Alors, it makes nothing," General Lanham said with magnificent savior faire, for he has been studying French in compliance with a firm official policy which requires all hands to speak French. One advantage of this policy is that it enables Americans and British to understand one another. Another is that when a general's zipper gets its transmission fouled he can face the situation with sang froid. General Lanham wears the combat infantry badge and the Purple Heart and his right leg below the knee is stuck on with Scotch tape but he never felt more uneasy in battle than he did when he nonchalantly grabbed the latch on his zipper and gave it a yank and nothing happened.

A young lady who works in an adjoining office, sorting telephone calls for General Lanham, tactfully asked "is there anything wrong, general? Is there anything I can do?"

"The answers are 'yes' and 'no,' in that order," General Lanham said. "Please close the door and go away and please tell them there will be a slight delay in the release of General Eisenhower's statement."

General Lanham is the press officer of SHAPE and, although he is crowded with honors, nevertheless, you well might says that his entire career, his whole life had been pointed at this critical moment, the only time in history when a brigadier general of the American Army was called upon to be prompt, efficient and prepared for any eventuality, in the acceptance by a five-star general of the Republican nomination, if any, if and when, it should be proffered by the 1952 convention.

Someone had blundered. Afterward, friends of General Lanham, thinking of Kimmel and Short and others who had suffered for failures beyond their power to foretend, were inclined to suspect sabotage by someone in the employ of the dry-cleaner who does the general's uniforms.

But, why alors? Alors is a French word meaning "bring me the bread well toasted and the butter and the confiture." It means everything. So why, alors, would an employee in the establishment of the reparationer of the pantaloons of soldiers commit sabotage on the General Lanham's zipper? A Taft Republican, perhaps, my old one? Don't be an old fool, my old one. There are no Taft Republicans here, Ah, but a Communist, is it not? Truly, for why not a Communist? But who else would have a motive to mash together by force the mechanism of the zipper which makes the aperture of the pantalons of the General Lanham that it would not close?

As alarm spread through the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, blanched lips whispered: "Call for volunteers. All 32-inch waisted officers with zippers in good working order willing to lend pants to meet emergency report to General Lanham." In French: "Alors! Alons! The zipper of the General Lanham it marches not!"

A lady secretary, chancing in on Major Mulkey, an aide to Major General John C. Persons, asked the major if he would consider—well, there was a crisis in General Lanham's office and the major's waist measure was about the same, and—

Major Mulkey's reasoning was this: "After all, I wear a conventional army officer's blouse. General Lanham wears that stylish Eisenhower battle-jacket. If anything happens, with my kind of blouse who is the wiser? But no, these Joes like to strut their skinny waistlines and if a zipper snafus without any front on the jacket that is their problem. Bismarck would have thought of the last boot latch. For lack of a nail a shoe was lost: For the loss of a shoe a horse was lost, and so forth until a war was lost. Let that be a lesson."

Major Mulkey kept his trousers on in this crisis. A Scottish officer saw General Lanham ogling his kilt in a sinister way and took evasive action.

The hero of the crisis was Colonel Jock Lawrence, of New York and Hollywood, a press relations officer who seems to have taken domestic science in high school. Colonel Lawrence charged into the breach, as it were, with an old copy of that sewing kit which was issued to GI's in the late war, known as a housewife. Let us avert our eyes, while Colonel Lawrence with magnificent initiative and quick, sure stitches, closed the gap and saved the day.

General Lanham then called the press conference and with that sang froid, that je ne sais quois, that, if one may say so, dolce far niente for which he is noted, delivered the elocution which, who knows the contrary, annunciated the next president of the United States.

"It was nothing," Colonel Lawrence said. "A simple little stitch I learned from Dave Dubinsky."

Chamber Returns MacAvery to Post

Lawrence J. MacAvery was re-elected president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce for 1952 at a well-attended meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night. Joseph Deegan, Henry Singer, and George W. Schneider were elected vice-presidents, and Chester A. Baltz, Jr., reelected as treasurer.

In accepting the election, MacAvery stated that he had a great deal of confidence in the future of the Chamber of Commerce and Kingston. "I believe the Chamber is in a stronger position now than it has been and with the support and cooperation of the members that more progress can be and will be made," MacAvery said. Robert E. Teetsel reported for J. Ellis Briggs, chairman of the nominating committee in the elections.

Enthusiastic discussion followed a report by Executive Secretary Albert Kurdt that another definite inquiry had been received through the local regional office of the State Department of Commerce, that a new industry requiring 7 to 10 acres of level land, with a railroad siding, wanted to settle in Kingston, but that no satisfactory site was available served by municipal water and sewerage disposal. An engineering firm is available to build the required building on terms satisfactory to the company in question.

Okay New Members

As a result of the industrial discussion a special committee was appointed to formally call this situation to the attention of the Common Council with the express hope that some solution can be found by cooperative effort.

Three new membership applications were approved. They were Mrs. Spencer Ennist of the Art Gift Shop, John J. Egan, attorney; and Raymond W. Garraghan of the Garraghan Oil Company.

A report given for Chairman Howard C. St. John indicated county-wide interest in the talent quest being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Original Amateur Hour. It is planned to have the Kingston preliminaries during the week of March 3 and the county finals April 2. A meeting of representatives from various parts of Ulster county will be held Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 22, to make additional plans. Entry blanks will be available within a week.

Chester A. Baltz, Jr., chairman of a special community improvement committee, reported that consideration of a long-time plan for Kingston is being given consideration. He stated that preliminary study indicates that they are confronted with a big problem requiring careful study. In the near future a meeting is planned with experts of the State Department of Commerce to formulate a program or procedure.

Six of the recently elected directors including Harry J. Beatty, Clarence H. Buddenhagen, C. Robert Cousins, DeWeese W. DeWitt, George W. Schneider, and Walter G. Williams, were present. Howard C. St. John, not present was reported ill. Other directors present included Chester A. Baltz, Jr., Emil G. Boessneck, L. V. Bogert, Pratt Boice, Joseph F. Deegan, Raymond W. Garraghan, Edward M. Huben, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Maynard Mizel, Lawrence A. Quilty, Elmer Rylance and Henry Singer.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

We are now approaching February in which three holidays come to pass, that most of us know well. Abraham Lincoln our 16th president who was born Feb. 12, 1809. George Washington our first president born in 1732 on Feb. 22nd. And of course we have St. Valentine's Day on Feb. 14th. Some folks may even know that Thomas A. Edison was born on Feb. 11th, 1847. Nowhere in history did I so far read that these men had time to break windows, destroy other people's property intentionally, throw snowballs so that others were hurt. Perhaps this is as good a month as any to instruct the young boys what is fun and what is harmful. The teachers push the blame on parents, the parents throw their hands up "What can we do?" The police are helpless because of many restrictions and red tape on juveniles, and all the while the young ones sometimes go from bad to worse and end up spending their lives paying for a major crime which perhaps could be prevented way back in grade school.

Lena M. Brown's letter of 124 West Pierpont street in which she quoted a saying of Abraham Lincoln of March 21, 1864 which perhaps should either be read by grade school youngsters or rewritten by them several times when they break church windows, tear down park equipment especially put up for them by the taxpayers, destroy Christmas lights and tear down names of veterans off decorative trees on Pine Grove avenue. How can youngsters face their parents without fear after such mischief? I can't imagine.

Of course in years back, before the push-button age, I don't remember such destruction in our Kingston. At least it was never committed the second time by the same youngsters. Parents were stricter, principals carried long rulers and other equipment and had harsh words to deal with them. Police officers also looked different. It was a different world. Every youngster had so much to do after school. There was coal and wood to get, errands to do, few grocery stores had delivery wagons and if they did they used them once a day. Most every boy once he reached the early teens had a job. His boss paid little and often was harsh and strict. Show me one youngster whom it spoiled.

Just in case my readers missed Lincoln's famous words as written in Lena M. Brown's letter in Friday's Freeman, allow me to repeat what Lincoln said in 1864: "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence it is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

Perhaps the youngsters who yearly, like clock work, destroy equipment in most of our parks were made to rebuild! Perhaps the boys who broke with stones the church windows near the Rondout Bridge were forced to work and make enough money to pay and rebuild them they would understand what is fun and what is malicious destruction. The punishment should fit the crime. To make them stay in, or stay in bed is not enough. Let them learn how to rebuild and repair instead of destroy. Show them how to be enthusiastic about making things from scrap woods and metals. Let them not sit with their hands folded and hate and desire to destroy more.

Opera House Burns At New Brunswick

New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—A roaring fire gutted the New Brunswick Opera House, one of this city's landmarks, early today.

Firemen battled the flames for almost two hours before the general alarm blaze was declared under control.

The Webb Wire Works, directly across the street from the brick structure, was slightly damaged by sheets of flame which spurted as much as 100 feet in the air.

Residents of homes in the immediate vicinity of the theatre on Liberty street, in the heart of the city, were evacuated until the blaze was checked.

Sam Wormser, manager and part owner of the old theatre, now a motion picture house, gave an early damage estimate of $100,000. Only the walls of the opera house, which is about four stories high, remain standing.

Cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The opera house was built shortly after the turn of the century.

Ethiopia Has Scrap Iron

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, (AP) — Ethiopia could provide thousands of tons of scrap iron for American blast furnaces. Transportation is one of the difficulties in getting it out of the country. Piles of rusting scrap litter many places in Addis Ababa and other areas in the country—debris from the 1941 fighting between the Italians and British.

Swimming Toll

Richard Halliburton once swam from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the Panama Canal. He paid the government 36 cents for toll charges, based on his tonnage, and it was necessary to put the great locks in operation for him.

Chamber Returns MacAvery to Post

Lawrence J. MacAvery was re-elected president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce for 1952 at a well-attended meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night. Joseph Deegan, Henry Singer, and George W. Schneider were elected vice-presidents, and Chester A. Baltz, Jr., reelected as treasurer.

In accepting the election, MacAvery stated that he had a great deal of confidence in the future of the Chamber of Commerce and Kingston. "I believe the Chamber is in a stronger position now than it has been and with the support and cooperation of the members that more progress can be and will be made," MacAvery said. Robert E. Teetsel reported for J. Ellis Briggs, chairman of the nominating committee in the elections.

Enthusiastic discussion followed a report by Executive Secretary Albert Kurdt that another definite inquiry had been received through the local regional office of the State Department of Commerce, that a new industry requiring 7 to 10 acres of level land, with a railroad siding, wanted to settle in Kingston, but that no satisfactory site was available served by municipal water and sewerage disposal. An engineering firm is available to build the required building on terms satisfactory to the company in question.

Okay New Members

As a result of the industrial discussion a special committee was appointed to formally call this situation to the attention of the Common Council with the express hope that some solution can be found by cooperative effort.

Three new membership applications were approved. They were Mrs. Spencer Ennist of the Art Gift Shop, John J. Egan, attorney; and Raymond W. Garraghan of the Garraghan Oil Company.

A report given for Chairman Howard C. St. John indicated county-wide interest in the talent quest being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Original Amateur Hour. It is planned to have the Kingston preliminaries during the week of March 3 and the county finals April 2. A meeting of representatives from various parts of Ulster county will be held Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 22, to make additional plans. Entry blanks will be available within a week.

Chester A. Baltz, Jr., chairman of a special community improvement committee, reported that consideration of a long-time plan for Kingston is being given consideration. He stated that preliminary study indicates that they are confronted with a big problem requiring careful study. In the near future a meeting is planned with experts of the State Department of Commerce to formulate a program or procedure.

Six of the recently elected directors including Harry J. Beatty, Clarence H. Buddenhagen, C. Robert Cousins, DeWeese W. DeWitt, George W. Schneider, and Walter G. Williams, were present. Howard C. St. John, not present was reported ill. Other directors present included Chester A. Baltz, Jr., Emil G. Boessneck, L. V. Bogert, Pratt Boice, Joseph F. Deegan, Raymond W. Garraghan, Edward M. Huben, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Maynard Mizel, Lawrence A. Quilty, Elmer Rylance and Henry Singer.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

We are now approaching February in which three holidays come to pass, that most of us know well. Abraham Lincoln our 16th president who was born Feb. 12, 1809. George Washington our first president born in 1732 on Feb. 22nd. And of course we have St. Valentine's Day on Feb. 14th. Some folks may even know that Thomas A. Edison was born on Feb. 11th, 1847. Nowhere in history did I so far read that these men had time to break windows, destroy other people's property intentionally, throw snowballs so that others were hurt. Perhaps this is as good a month as any to instruct the young boys what is fun and what is harmful. The teachers push the blame on parents, the parents throw their hands up "What can we do?" The police are helpless because of many restrictions and red tape on juveniles, and all the while the young ones sometimes go from bad to worse and end up spending their lives paying for a major crime which perhaps could be prevented way back in grade school.

Lena M. Brown's letter of 124 West Pierpont street in which she quoted a saying of Abraham Lincoln of March 21, 1864 which perhaps should either be read by grade school youngsters or rewritten by them several times when they break church windows, tear down park equipment especially put up for them by the taxpayers, destroy Christmas lights and tear down names of veterans off decorative trees on Pine Grove avenue. How can youngsters face their parents without fear after such mischief? I can't imagine.

Of course in years back, before the push-button age, I don't remember such destruction in our Kingston. At least it was never committed the second time by the same youngsters. Parents were stricter, principals carried long rulers and other equipment and had harsh words to deal with them. Police officers also looked different. It was a different world. Every youngster had so much to do after school. There was coal and wood to get, errands to do, few grocery stores had delivery wagons and if they did they used them once a day. Most every boy once he reached the early teens had a job. His boss paid little and often was harsh and strict. Show me one youngster whom it spoiled.

Just in case my readers missed Lincoln's famous words as written in Lena M. Brown's letter in Friday's Freeman, allow me to repeat what Lincoln said in 1864: "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence it is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

Perhaps the youngsters who yearly, like clock work, destroy equipment in most of our parks were made to rebuild! Perhaps the boys who broke with stones the church windows near the Rondout Bridge were forced to work, and make enough money to pay and rebuild them they would understand what is fun and what is malicious destruction. The punishment should fit the crime. To make them stay in, or stay in bed is not enough. Let them learn how to rebuild and repair instead of destroy. Show them how to be enthusiastic about making things from scrap woods and metals. Let them not sit with their hands folded and hate and desire to destroy more.

Opera House Burns At New Brunswick

New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—A roaring fire gutted the New Brunswick Opera House, one of this city's landmarks, early today.

Firemen battled the flames for almost two hours before the general alarm blaze was declared under control.

The Webb Wire Works, directly across the street from the brick structure, was slightly damaged by sheets of flame which spurted as much as 100 feet in the air.

Residents of homes in the immediate vicinity of the theatre on Liberty street, in the heart of the city, were evacuated until the blaze was checked.

Sam Wormser, manager and part owner of the old theatre, now a motion picture house, gave an early damage estimate of $100,000. Only the walls of the opera house, which is about four stories high, remain standing.

Cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The opera house was built shortly after the turn of the century.

Ethiopia Has Scrap Iron

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, (AP) — Ethiopia could provide thousands of tons of scrap iron for American blast furnaces. Transportation is one of the difficulties in getting it out of the country. Piles of rusting scrap litter many places in Addis Ababa and other areas in the country—debris from the 1941 fighting between the Italians and British.

Swimming Toll

Richard Halliburton once swam from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the Panama Canal. He paid the government 36 cents for toll charges, based on his tonnage, and it was necessary to put the great locks in operation for him.

A reader doesn't understand why goods sent in a ship constitute a cargo, while goods sent in a car are a shipment.

Patient—Tell me truly, doctor, what are my chances to recover?

Doctor—Just 100 per cent. Statistics show that only nine out of ten die from your disease—and nine of my patients have already died from it. You're the tenth!

Fable: Once there was a woman who looked at the magazine ads, and still was satisfied with her kitchen.

Young Man—She's not my new girl — just the old one painted over!

A teacher was trying to give her pupils an illustration of the word "perserverance."

Teacher — What is it that carries a man along rough roads and up hills and down through jungles and swamps and raging torrents?

There was a silence, and then Junior, whose father was a motor dealer, spoke up:

Junior—Please, Miss, there ain't no such car.

Suitor (sighing)—Well, since you don't want to marry me after all, perhaps you'll return my ring.

Girl (acidly)—If you must know, your jeweler has called for it already.

Better a wise enemy than an ignorant friend.

Charwoman (to neighbor with whom she is having a spat)—What I say it there is ladies an' ladies—an' you ain't neither.

Boy—Gimme a nickel, mister?

Passerby—I'd be happy to.

Boy—Yeah? Well why don't you give me a dime then, and really enjoy yourself?

Women understand men better than men understand women.

Skin Perils in Cocktails

This timely warning to young women who drink cocktails has been issued by Dr. Charles F. Pabst, Brooklyn dermatologist (specialist in skin diseases): If you indulge in cocktails, be cautious, be sure to follow it with dinner inside half an hour unless you want to have "the skin of an old woman before you are 30." Too often, he points out, the before-dinner cocktail is not followed by dinner. If that is done the small blood vessels in the skin of the young girl will lose their tone and the oil glands will become disordered, producing a flabby, wrinkled and blotchy looking skin."

Helen—I wonder what men talk about when they're off by themselves.

Nellie—Probably the same things we do.

Helen—Oh—aren't they awful!

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Railroad issues came to the fore in the stock market again today to push prices irregularly higher.

Chemicals, oils and selected leaders in copper mining and other sections participated in the rise. Gains ranged to around a dollar a share, but a few scattered losers persisted also.

An initial burst of activity soon died down, but trading picked up again as the rails uncovered some demand in an apparent duplication of their performance Wednesday.

Estimates of better earnings for some of the carriers this year have been credited with expanding the interest of investors in these stocks. Another factor has been oil and mineral operations on properties in which some railroads have large interests.

Reaching higher ground today were St. Louis San Francisco, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Santa Fe, Dow Chemical, American Cyanamid, Amerada Petroleum, Texas Co., Gulf Oil, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda Copper, International Nickel, Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler and Woolworth.

Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Goodyear had slight rises. The General Services Administration disclosed a cut of 1½-cents a pound in the price of crude natural rubber it sells to industry.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Railroad issues came to the fore in the stock market again today to push prices irregularly higher.

Chemicals, oils and selected leaders in copper mining and other sections participated in the rise. Gains ranged to around a dollar a share, but a few scattered losers persisted, also.

An initial burst of activity soon died down, but trading picked up again as the rails uncovered some demand in an apparent duplication of their performance Wednesday.

Estimates of better earnings for some of the carriers this year have been credited with expanding the interest of investors in these stocks. Another factor has been oil and mineral operations on properties in which some railroads have large interests.

Reaching higher ground today were St. Louis San Francisco, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Santa Fe, Dow Chemical, American Cyanamid, Amerada Petroleum, Texas Co., Gulf Oil, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda Copper, International Nickel, Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler and Woolworth.

Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Goodyear had slight rises. The General Services Administration disclosed a cut of 1½-cents a pound in the price of crude natural rubber it sells to industry.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Railroad issues came to the fore in the stock market again today to push prices irregularly higher.

Chemicals, oils and selected leaders in copper mining and other sections participated in the rise. Gains ranged to around a dollar a share, but a few scattered losers persisted, also.

An initial burst of activity soon died down, but trading picked up again as the rails uncovered some demand in an apparent duplication of their performance Wednesday.

Estimates of better earnings for some of the carriers this year have been credited with expanding the interest of investors in these stocks. Another factor has been oil and mineral operations on properties in which some railroads have large interests.

Reaching higher ground today were St. Louis San Francisco, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Santa Fe, Dow Chemical, American Cyanamid, Amerada Petroleum, Texas Co., Gulf Oil, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda Copper, International Nickel, Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler and Woolworth.

Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Goodyear had slight rises. The General Services Administration disclosed a cut of 1½-cents a pound in the price of crude natural rubber it sells to industry.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Railroad issues came to the fore in the stock market again today to push prices irregularly higher.

Chemicals, oils and selected leaders in copper mining and other sections participated in the rise. Gains ranged to around a dollar a share, but a few scattered losers persisted, also.

An initial burst of activity soon died down, but trading picked up again as the rails uncovered some demand in an apparent duplication of their performance Wednesday.

Estimates of better earnings for some of the carriers this year have been credited with expanding the interest of investors in these stocks. Another factor has been oil and mineral operations on properties in which some railroads have large interests.

Reaching higher ground today were St. Louis San Francisco, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Santa Fe, Dow Chemical, American Cyanamid, Amerada Petroleum, Texas Co., Gulf Oil, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda Copper, International Nickel, Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler and Woolworth.

Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Goodyear had slight rises. The General Services Administration disclosed a cut of 1½-cents a pound in the price of crude natural rubber it sells to industry.

The correct play, made by the new league president, is not so startling as to knock anybody out of his seat, but more than nine experienced bridge players out of ten would miss it.

West opened the queen of hearts and was allowed to hold the trick. He continued the suit, and Cohan won with the king of hearts.

If you were playing the hand, which suit would you now try to develop? Don't be ashamed to admit that you'd lead the queen of diamonds for a finesse. Most experienced bridge players would do the same thing, but they'd all be wrong.

Cohan quite properly led a low club to dummy's king and continued the suit to knock out West's ace. Now West could establish his hearts by leading the suit a third time, but he could never regain the lead to cash his good hearts.

Declarer won the heart return with the ace and cashed the rest of his clubs. Then he could safely try the diamond finesse. East was able to win with the king of diamonds but could not return a heart. East could therefore not prevent declarer from winning a spade, two hearts, three diamonds, and three clubs.

Now let's go back to the beginning of the hand and see why it's wrong to lead a diamond after winning the king of hearts. East wins the diamond finesse and can return a heart, setting up his partner's suit.

West still has the ace of clubs and is bound to get the lead with that card in time to set the contract with his long heart suit.

The important point is that South must attack West's entries before the hearts are established. Since the ace of clubs is a sure entry, that suit must be led immediately. South is not worried about the king of diamonds, for if West holds that card he will never be able to win a trick with it.

May Free Employers

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Employers with only three or four workers may soon be freed from wage controls. Chairman Nathan Feinsinger said yesterday the Wage Stabilization Board will soon grant the exemption but has not set the number of employes an employer may have to be included. This rule probably will touch those employers with four or less workers. Feinsinger told a round table discussion of controls sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Exempting small employers would cause little additional inflation, he said, but would free many businessmen from the controls.

Two Are Reappointed

Commissioner Raymond L. Whitbeck was reappointed secretary of the Board of Public Works and Edward W. Snyder was renamed secretary to Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, the board's president, at the BPW reorganization meeting yesterday. The board adopted its rules for 1952 and the same seven committees which served last year were reappointed.

U. S. Might Punish Sellers of Sweaters

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The government is going to try to punish people who have been peddling "flash-fire" sweaters.

Chairman James M. Mead of the Federal Trade Commission said yesterday agents have been sent to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Providence, R. I., Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles to check on reports of "torch sweaters" being sold.

Mead said the agents will examine suspected garments to see if any federal laws have been violated.

Investigation so far, Mead said, indicates most of the sweaters have been sold by peddlers, not retail stores.

Wage Rollback Might Be Ordered For 267 Companies

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Wages of employes of 267 New York state and New Jersey companies may be rolled back because of unauthorized increases, the U. S. Labor Department says.

The apparent violations were revealed in spot checks made in November and December.

Salaries and wages will be rolled back the amounts of the illegal increases if the violations are confirmed, Frank J. Muench, regional director of the Labor Department's wage and hour and public contracts division, announced last night.

He said case files on established violators already have been turned over to the regional office of the Wage Stabilization Board for enforcement action.

Awaits Court Action

Names of these alleged violators and of the 267 on which preliminary spot checks were made will not be made public until court action is begun.

Muench said the entire amount of the offending firms' payrolls—including both the legal base pay and the illegal increases—may be disallowed for income tax deductions under Defense Production Act provisions.

Muench also said that, although checks have been made only on wages, company executives who granted illegal increases "may very well" have raised their own salaries by "the same or a greater percentage."

U. S. Imports From Delhi

New Delhi, (AP) — The United States was the largest importer of goods from the Delhi airport during October-November. Out of a total export of $179,000, America's share totaled about 32 per cent, with Japan and the United Kingdom ranking next. America mostly obtained through Delhi living animals, textiles, ivory manufactures and boots while it sent agricultural tractor parts, drugs and medicines, wearing apparel and radio tubes.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Experience Counts At Bridge Tourney

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

At the national bridge tournament in Detroit last December Joe Cohan, of Wooster, Ohio, was elected president of the American Contract Bridge League for this year.

Cohan is not only an able executive but is also a first-class bridge player, a Life Master (the highest ranking given to tournament stars).

Cohan's mastery of bridge technique is shown in today's hand, in which he held the South cards.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Jan. 16—First Lt. Betty Knickerbocker, one time pupil of the Shokan school, is now stationed at Langley Air Force Base, Va., where she is a member of 47th Medical Group. Betty was formerly a nurse at Los Alamos, N. Mex.

March of Dimes coin cards mailed to Olive residents are returnable to Harold Wilkins of the local campaign committee.

A number of local men are employed on the big Onteora schoolhouse project where construction is in progress during the winter months. More than 700 seating units, each consisting of tubular steel and wood desk and chair, have been ordered in anticipation of a September opening for the Boiceville educational center.

An unusual accident occurred at the Terry Peckham farm in Little Westkill recently where one of the cows slipped off the cowbed and was found choken to death in the stancheon.

The Olive blood bank sponsored by the local Legion Auxiliary at the town offices Jan. 10 was a success. The 18 blood donors were as follows: Evelyn Lang, Mary Merrihew, Ethel Anderson, James McGloughlin, Mildred McGloughlin, Irving Hesley, Delia Lewis, Arlos Avery, Morris Shutter, Sarah Miller, Vera Crawford, William Usher, Robert Usher, Bradford Kelder, John Vagenstrom, Jr., Charles Beigler and Howard Meyers. The bank now has blood available to any resident of the town who may need it by calling Shokan 2631.

Birthdays falling Friday, Jan. 18, include that of Mrs. Frank Carle of the old state road. The former Muriel DuBois was brought up at Ashokan, one of four children of Lemuel and Jessie (Winne) DuBois. She has two children.

Local residents who have been down to Augusta, Ga., near Camp Gordon where a number of Olive soldiers are stationed, say prices there are "terrific"—premium gas 34 cents, meals $2 and taxes on everything. As for the big camp, it covers, not hundreds, but thousands of acres, with several large areas set aside for married men and their families most of whom live in trailers. There are stores, and shops galore and even theatres at this basic Signal Corps school and training camp.

A Walton, Delaware county clergyman, visiting relatives up in Maine, decided he'd not bother to tote home any potatoes, what with prices being so low it didn't seem worth while messing up the family car with them. Imagine the good dominie's chagrin shortly after returning home when spuds shot up to 98 cents a peck on the local market.

Speaking of ministers—the Rev. Benjamin White who died in December at Kirkside, Roxbury, and his wife were the first guests to enter that Reformed Church retirement home which was opened, 1950, in the one time Helen Gould Shepard residence. Dominie White had retired from the ministry in 1941 after holding three pastorates, one of them at Germantown, on account of ill health.

According to the July, 1950, census report, California had a population of 10,472,348.

Hobby Helps Polio-Weakened Boy

SHOKAN

Shokan, Jan. 16—First Lt. Betty Knickerbocker, one time pupil of the Shokan school, is now stationed at Langley Air Force Base, Va., where she is a member of 47th Medical Group. Betty was formerly a nurse at Los Alamos, N. Mex.

March of Dimes coin cards mailed to Olive residents are returnable to Harold Wilkins of the local campaign committee.

A number of local men are employed on the big Onteora schoolhouse project where construction is in progress during the winter months. More than 700 seating units, each consisting of tubular steel and wood desk and chair, have been ordered in anticipation of a September opening for the Boiceville educational center.

An unusual accident occurred at the Terry Peckham farm in Little Westkill recently where one of the cows slipped off the cowbed and was found choken to death in the stancheon.

The Olive blood bank sponsored by the local Legion Auxiliary at the town offices Jan. 10 was a success. The 18 blood donors were as follows: Evelyn Lang, Mary Merrihew, Ethel Anderson, James McGloughlin, Mildred McGloughlin, Irving Hesley, Delia Lewis, Arlos Avery, Morris Shutter, Sarah Miller, Vera Crawford, William Usher, Robert Usher, Bradford Kelder, John Vagenstrom, Jr., Charles Beigler and Howard Meyers. The bank now has blood available to any resident of the town who may need it by calling Shokan 2631.

Birthdays falling Friday, Jan. 18, include that of Mrs. Frank Carle of the old state road. The former Muriel DuBois was brought up at Ashokan, one of four children of Lemuel and Jessie (Winne) DuBois. She has two children.

Local residents who have been down to Augusta, Ga., near Camp Gordon where a number of Olive soldiers are stationed, say prices there are "terrific"—premium gas 34 cents, meals $2 and taxes on everything. As for the big camp, it covers, not hundreds, but thousands of acres, with several large areas set aside for married men and their families most of whom live in trailers. There are stores, and shops galore and even theatres at this basic Signal Corps school and training camp.

A Walton, Delaware county clergyman, visiting relatives up in Maine, decided he'd not bother to tote home any potatoes, what with prices being so low it didn't seem worth while messing up the family car with them. Imagine the good dominie's chagrin shortly after returning home when spuds shot up to 98 cents a peck on the local market.

Speaking of ministers—the Rev. Benjamin White who died in December at Kirkside, Roxbury, and his wife were the first guests to enter that Reformed Church retirement home which was opened, 1950, in the one time Helen Gould Shepard residence. Dominie White had retired from the ministry in 1941 after holding three pastorates, one of them at Germantown, on account of ill health.

According to the July, 1950, census report, California had a population of 10,472,348.

Hobby Helps Polio-Weakened Boy

Pirate Trove

Somewhere on the mainland of Panama is said to be a great store of gold hidden by Sir Francis Drake after he had sacked the city of the same name.

Mrs. S. J. Lloyd
2208 Sylvan Ave.
McKeesport, Pa.

Men folks say... only a woman could make it taste so good!

Democrats Propose Election by Voting

Albany, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Legislature's Democratic minority is backing a proposal that district party leaders in Manhattan be elected directly by enrolled voters.

Elmer F. Quinn, Senate minority leader, and Assemblyman Hulan E. Jack introduced bills yesterday calling for the change. It was recommended by the New York county (Manhattan) executive committee and Carmine G. De Sapio, Tammany Hall leader.

Under the present setup, a would-be district leader submits a slate of candidates for the party's county committee. If the candidates are elected by the district's enrolled voters, their sponsor is recognized as the district chief.

De Sapio said the bills were designed "to encourage the greatest participation possible of party members in molding the party program and the party leadership."

35 Miles on Gallon Claimed for New Willys Aero Auto

A sleek new aerodynamically-engineered passenger sedan, long rumored as the car which may prove to be the automotive industry's most outstanding design innovation in 1952, is being unveiled Friday at the Albany Ave. Garage Inc., 545 Albany avenue.

Named the Aero Willys, the new car produced by the Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., is equipped with a 90 h.p. engine, special frame construction, and allegedly will travel up to 35 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

This is the first conventional-type passenger car built by Willys since early 1942, revealed Alexander Embree, owner of the Albany Ave. Garage Inc., local Willys dealer. "It is powered with one of the world's most efficient automotive engines and has 90 features that add up to an entirely new concept of motoring convenience, comfort and economy," said Embree.

Particular attention is focused on the "roomy comfort, beautiful lines, and fine riding qualities heretofore associated only with expensive, long wheelbase automobiles, which have been successfully engineered into the compact nine-foot wheelbase and 15-foot overall length of the Aero Willys."

Embree extended a cordial invitation to anyone in the area to visit the new showroom at his place of business at 545 Albany avenue, and see the new Aero Willys, on display Friday, January 18.

Harriman Offers Land

Monroe, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, director of the National Security Agency, has offered to give 100 acres of land to the new Monroe-Woodbury Central School District, officials said today. Harriman's offer of the gift of land, bordering Route 32 between Harriman village and Central Valley, came after the board of education inquired about buying needed land for the new rural district from him. The land, part of the vast tract long held by the Harriman family in the upper Ramapo Mountain area, is adjacent to Arden House, the mansion and grounds Harriman gave to Columbia University last year.

Girl With Relatives

Local police were notified at 10:30 p. m., yesterday that Dolores Purdy, 16, of 143 Greenkill avenue, who has been missing from her home since last Oct. 16 has been located at the home of an aunt in Niagara Falls. The information, the police report said, came from an uncle of the girl. Faye Davis, 15, of 158 Bruyn avenue, who was reported missing at the same time, was located earlier this month in Florida.

New York—(NEA)—The fashion-right blouse that's light, soft to the touch, wrinkle resistant, that launders well and needs no ironing, absorbs moisture easily and holds it pleats under all conditions is that blouse that fills the bill for the paycheck girl.

In all orlon or part-orlon acrylic fiber fabric, this is the blouse for the full-time, working wardrobe.

It can be laundered at night, along with lingerie, and turn up next morning ready for another day without benefit of ironing.

The new orlon and part-orlon blouses are done in basket weaves, in shantungs, in crepes, in taffetas. The fabric is light weight but shape retention is inherent in the fibers.

Blouse colors (white, magnolia, mauve, charcoal, mint green) are planned to provide an accent for basic suits.

Long-sleeved blouse (left) is in basket-weave and is all orlon. A yoke front is tucked to create a pleated look. Tailored, notched collar and front closing with pearl buttons are classic.

Tailored shantung blouse (right) with short sleeves is in orlon-and-nylon. Zig-zag front closing, edge of sleeves and collar are corded.

Local Pharmacy In Rexall Group

Messrs. Fishkin and Mones, owners of the Governor Clinton Pharmacy, announced today that they had been granted a Rexall Drug Company franchise which entitles them to sell Rexall products in Kingston. They thus join the nearly 10,000 other independent druggists in the nation who are members of the Rexall organization. Hereafter this store will be known as the Governor Clinton Rexall Pharmacy.

"We are pleased and proud to become Rexall druggists," said Mones, "and we know our customers will welcome the famous line of Rexall products and the advantages they will share with us in having another Rexall store in our growing community."

Under the company's unique program, Rexall druggists remain independent business men, but gain the advantage of having behind them the mass buying power of nearly 10,000 drug stores and the largest drug company in the world, plus the newest research in drugs and the latest merchandising methods. Originally known as United Drug Company when it was formed in 1904, Rexall has nearly a half century of experience in manufacturing and drug store operation.

In Mexico, there are 80 public holidays annually. Mohammedans have 62 holidays in the course of a year.

Report Is Filed At Annual Meeting Of Home for Aged

At the annual meeting held on January 10 at the Home for the Aged the following report was given:

Madam president and members of the Board of Managers of the Home for the Aged in Ulster county. It gives me pleasure to submit the following report:

We have had nine meetings during the year with an average attendance of 14. We have received seven single applications.

Donation Day was held at the home on October 25 at which time visitors are always invited and the guests of the home are also present. This past year at this Donation Day a fine program of instrumental music was given by students from High School and grade schools under the direction of Mr. Mirotte. The guests of the home especially enjoy these programs. Refreshments were served from an attractively decorated tea table by Mrs. S. J. Matthews and her committee.

The cash receipts amounted to $479.50 and many articles of food were also received.

Each month a list of donations is published and write-ups for Donation Day as well as other items for the benefit of the home are published in the Kingston Daily Freeman. We are most grateful for the publicity which the paper gives these articles.

The Ministerial Association as well as the Gideon Society has supplied the home with services on Sundays, which is greatly appreciated by the guests.

Entertainments have been provided by the various churches and other organizations of the city for which the guests are very thankful. Again this past year through the efforts of Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman and her committee, the guests have been taken out each week during the pleasant weather for drives through the country. This has been thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

Our expenses for nursing and hospital care have been very much greater than in the past years.

We have tried to keep our expenditures on furnishing to the minimum.

A visiting committee from the board has called regularly on the guests, especially those unable to leave the home.

Our Good Cheer Committee has been able to provide many extra niceties during the year for the guests to make their days more pleasant, such as remembering their birthdays, etc.

At Christmas time the home was beautifully decorated for the holiday season by Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Parks.

Santa Claus appeared again this year and delivered Christmas gifts to each guest of the home. The board and guests greatly appreciate Santa's part in the holiday program.

The home is most grateful for any entertainment which can be given, especially during the winter months when it is difficult for the guests to get out.

Respectfully submitted,
MARIAN D. HALVERSON,
Secretary.

Mandatory Penalty Is Given on Drug Charge

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The first mandatory penalty invoked in this area for a second offender in narcotics violations was imposed yesterday on Benjamin Langley, 35-year-old Negro, in Federal Court by Judge Vincent L. Leibell.

According to Assistant U. S. Attorney Mortimer O'Brien, Langley, for whom no address was given, was arrested last November when he attempted to sell an unspecified amount of marijuana to a federal agent. Langley was indicted by a federal grand jury in December on one count of selling narcotics.

In imposing sentence, Judge Leibell indicated that, under the narcotics law signed last November by President Truman, he had no other choice but to impose a jail term.

Accord Child Clinic

A child health conference conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held at the health center in Accord on January 23 from 1 to 3 p. m. These clinics are limited to infant and preschool children for the purpose of improving child health through early recognition of defects, and the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

Many Measles Cases

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The State Health Department reported today a high, "but not alarming," number of measles cases in upstate New York. A total of 9,719 cases was reported from Oct. 1 through Jan. 12—an increase of 7,726 over the corresponding period last year. For the first 12 days this year, 2,897 cases were listed. This compared with 653 in the same 1951 period.

Each month a list of donations is published and write-ups for Donation Day as well as other items for the benefit of the home are published in the Kingston Daily Freeman. We are most grateful for the publicity which the paper gives these articles.

The Ministerial Association as well as the Gideon Society has supplied the home with services on Sundays, which is greatly appreciated by the guests.

Entertainments have been provided by the various churches and other organizations of the city for which the guests are very thankful. Again this past year through the efforts of Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman and her committee, the guests have been taken out each week during the pleasant weather for drives through the country. This has been thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

Our expenses for nursing and hospital care have been very much greater than in the past years.

We have tried to keep our expenditures on furnishing to the minimum.

A visiting committee from the board has called regularly on the guests, especially those unable to leave the home.

Our Good Cheer Committee has been able to provide many extra niceties during the year for the guests to make their days more pleasant, such as remembering their birthdays, etc.

At Christmas time the home was beautifully decorated for the holiday season by Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Parks.

Santa Claus appeared again this year and delivered Christmas gifts to each guest of the home. The board and guests greatly appreciate Santa's part in the holiday program.

The home is most grateful for any entertainment which can be given, especially during the winter months when it is difficult for the guests to get out.

Respectfully submitted,
MARIAN D. HALVERSON,
Secretary.

Mandatory Penalty Is Given on Drug Charge

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The first mandatory penalty invoked in this area for a second offender in narcotics violations was imposed yesterday on Benjamin Langley, 35-year-old Negro, in Federal Court by Judge Vincent L. Leibell.

According to Assistant U. S. Attorney Mortimer O'Brien, Langley, for whom no address was given, was arrested last November when he attempted to sell an unspecified amount of marijuana to a federal agent. Langley was indicted by a federal grand jury in December on one count of selling narcotics.

In imposing sentence, Judge Leibell indicated that, under the narcotics law signed last November by President Truman, he had no other choice but to impose a jail term.

New Storm Threatens Coast With Additional Rain, Snow

San Francisco, Jan. 17 (AP)—The black mass of a new storm front rolled toward northern California today, threatening more rain and snow for areas already flooded and snowbound.

A five-day storm already has (1) isolated towns, (2) disrupted transport and communications and (3) sent hundreds of lowland residents from flooded homes.

Portola, Calif., railroad and lumber town of 4,000 high in the Sierra, was isolated and in critical condition until a Western Pacific emergency train bored in with medical supplies yesterday.

A women died in a gas explosion there and a nine-foot snowfall collapsed buildings and stranded seven buses carrying 248 persons.

At least 13 deaths have been attributed to the storm and millions of dollars of property has been destroyed.

Food Supplies Low

Isolated communities in the Sierra reported food supplies were running low and that some houses were buckling under the weight of snow that drifted as high as 40 feet.

No one knew how the 200 residents of Almanor and Prattville in Plumas county were faring. Their communications were cut off for the fourth consecutive day.

Only sporadic communications were open to Quincy, Susanville, Camptonville, and Westwood and to Alturas in Modoc county.

A torrential rain in Southern California took five lives.

Heavy snow in Utah and Idaho stopped highway transportation and marooned travelers.

Slides Block Lines

Slides blocked both the coast and San Joaquin Valley lines of the Southern Pacific, principal Los Angeles-San Francisco routes. Trains were sent over a circuitous route, as far east as Barstow in southeastern California. Buses shuttled train passengers between Santa Barbara and Los Angeles.

All passenger trains between the east and San Francisco were detoured from Salt Lake City south to Barstow. The detours caused delays of seven to 10 hours.

Hundreds of acres of land in the Merced (Calif.) area were inundated by swollen creeks, but waters were reported receding.

The highway patrol said it would be at least another 36 hours before U. S. Highway 40, east to Reno, could be reopened.

Most highways open today were put on an emergency use basis only.

"Morale generally was high but the worst thing was reports that rescuers could move only a mile an hour and other discouraging news."

Others still had vacation trips ahead, some to Hawaii.

At Oakland, one stretcher case was taken off—Robert A. Miller, assistant superintendent of the S. P.'s Sacramento division. Doctors said he suffered from exhaustion during rescue operations.

One the trip down, many passengers slept. Pullman Conductor R. C. Barnes said "They hit the sack very hard.

They were tired from their dramatic rescue, which included plodding over snowy ground.

They made their way a quarter-mile from the trapped streamliner by foot and by weasel and snowcat to a cleared highway. They they were taken by automobile to a nearby lodge for warm food and treatment.

And finally they boarded the relief train at Emigrant Gap, about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Bomber Crashes, 2 Killed at Rome

Rome, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A B-17 bomber crashed and exploded in flames near Griffiss air force base today. Two airmen were killed and five injured seriously.

The four-engined plane, stationed at Griffiss, on the outskirts of Rome, was approaching for a landing after a routine flight, the base reported.

Edward W. Goetz, who operates a gasoline station near the scene, said he saw the ship come in low, strike the top of a tall elm tree, dive to the top of a bank and roll over in a tree nursery's field of evergreen shrubs.

The air base, in announcing that two were dead and five hurt, did not disclose their names.

The plane was a mass of flame soon after the crash. The Griffiss base fire department fought the blaze.

The accident occurred about a half-mile from the base and 600 yards from a cluster of apartments housing 330 families.

Draft Eligibles Advised to Check On Present Status

Local draft boards 18 and 19 today requested registrants to bring their files up to date.

Those who have been married should give the date of marriage, and if a father, he should list name of the child or children and dates of birth. Also if he is an expectant father, he should obtain a doctor's certificate.

Selective Service regulations provide now that the age limit of liability for military service is extended to the age of 35. It is requested that particularly those between the ages of 26 and 35 bring their files up to date.

Registrants are requested to write to the board and list any change that might affect their status. This is important, said the board chairmen, because classifications of the above named age group are being revised.

Changes of address should also be reported by post card or letter, it was stressed, because it is the responsibility of all registrants at all times to keep their draft board advised of any changes that may affect their classification.

Bloom Orchestra to Play for Kingston Hospital Auxiliary Dance February 12

Orchestra Leader

(Korman Photo)

LARRY BLOOM

Larry Bloom and his orchestra, currently featured in the Peacock lounge of the Waldorf Astoria in New York city, will return to this city by popular request to play for the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary's 12th annual dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Saturday, Feb. 2. The proceeds from the event will be used to add to the comfort and welfare of patients in the Kingston Hospital.

A former Kingston resident, Bloom has appeared with Bob Grant and the Hildegard show at the Plaza; with Max Bergere at the Versailles, at the Sea Bright Yacht Club, the Roney Plaza Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., and the Stork Club, to mention a few.

During the winter season of 1950-51, he appeared with the Michael Zarin orchestra at the Waldorf Astoria and returned again for an indefinite engagement on Jan. 14. Switching from band leader to arranger and composer, he has broadcast on coast to coast radio hookups over WOR and the Mutual network.

A versatile musician, who can wheedle music out of the saxophone, clarinet and violin with equal ease, he is well known for Decca recordings of his rumba, tango and samba arrangements. He is considered one of the country's top authorities on Latin-American music.

MISS NANCY SUMMERS

Miss Nancy Stone Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Summers, Woodstock, graduate student in art, is having a one-man show of paintings and etchings in the Florida State University Art Gallery which opened Tuesday and continues through Thursday, Jan. 31.

Miss Summers' exhibition, which is one of the requirements for a Master's degree in art, opened with an informal reception at the gallery on Tuesday. Edmund Lewandowski, acting head of the FSU Art Department in charge of Miss Summers' painting, says that all persons interested in art are invited to attend the opening of this exhibition.

Other exhibitions in which Miss Summers has previously shown work are The Woodstock Gallery, the Rochester Finger Lake Show, and the 1951 Florida Federation of Art Show where she received honorable mention. Having grown up in the environment of an artist's family, Miss Summers states this has stimulated her interest and enjoyment in drawing and painting since an early age.

A native of Woodstock, New York, and a graduate of Syracuse University, Miss Summers came to the Department of Art with a background of considerable commercial experience in and around New York city. At the Florida State University she has specialized in the study of painting as a creative expression and her exhibition will present the record of her growth in that field.

On the basis of her unusual background and proven ability, Miss Summers has been awarded part-time graduate assistantships in each semester of her course of study. While Miss Summers' training equips her to fill almost any position in the teaching or supervision of art activities, her preference is to teach painting and design courses on the college level.

LARRY BLOOM

Larry Bloom and his orchestra, currently featured in the Peacock lounge of the Waldorf Astoria in New York city, will return to this city by popular request to play for the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary's 12th annual dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Saturday, Feb. 2. The proceeds from the event will be used to add to the comfort and welfare of patients in the Kingston Hospital.

A former Kingston resident, Bloom has appeared with Bob Grant and the Hildegard show at the Plaza; with Max Bergere at the Versailles, at the Sea Bright Yacht Club, the Roney Plaza Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., and the Stork Club, to mention a few.

During the winter season of 1950-51, he appeared with the Michael Zarin orchestra at the Waldorf Astoria and returned again for an indefinite engagement on Jan. 14. Switching from band leader to arranger and composer, he has broadcast on coast to coast radio hookups over WOR and the Mutual network.

A versatile musician, who can wheedle music out of the saxophone, clarinet and violin with equal ease, he is well known for Decca recordings of his rumba, tango and samba arrangements. He is considered one of the country's top authorities on Latin-American music.

To Have One Man Show

MISS NANCY SUMMERS

Miss Nancy Stone Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Summers, Woodstock, graduate student in art, is having a one-man show of paintings and etchings in the Florida State University Art Gallery which opened Tuesday and continues through Thursday, Jan. 31.

Miss Summers' exhibition, which is one of the requirements for a Master's degree in art, opened with an informal reception at the gallery on Tuesday. Edmund Lewandowski, acting head of the FSU Art Department in charge of Miss Summers' painting, says that all persons interested in art are invited to attend the opening of this exhibition.

Other exhibitions in which Miss Summers has previously shown work are The Woodstock Gallery, the Rochester Finger Lake Show, and the 1951 Florida Federation of Art Show where she received honorable mention. Having grown up in the environment of an artist's family, Miss Summers states this has stimulated her interest and enjoyment in drawing and painting since an early age.

A native of Woodstock, New York, and a graduate of Syracuse University, Miss Summers came to the Department of Art with a background of considerable commercial experience in and around New York city. At the Florida State University she has specialized in the study of painting as a creative expression and her exhibition will present the record of her growth in that field.

On the basis of her unusual background and proven ability, Miss Summers has been awarded part-time graduate assistantships in each semester of her course of study. While Miss Summers' training equips her to fill almost any position in the teaching or supervision of art activities, her preference is to teach painting and design courses on the college level.

Adult Education Discussion Group Ponders IQ Value at Meeting Monday

Miss Blanche Kirshenblum, guidance teacher, Myron J. Michael Junior High School, and James E. Tobin, guidance director, Kingston High School, were the principal speakers at the Monday meeting of the Adult Education Discussion Group at the KHS library, when the value of the intelligence quotient commonly referred to as I.Q. was analyzed by the speakers and later discussed in open meeting.

A variety of factors notably increase or decrease a child's intellectual ability stated Miss Kirshenblum. It was her opinion that while a child's I.Q. gives an approximate intellectual status, it is not infallable but rather a gauge to the child's capacity to cope with tasks involving the ability to learn.

It was learned from further statements made by the speaker that the most efficacious use of determining a child's I.Q. is in the guidance that can be given by the proper channeling of his studies and abilities.

Test Program

Of the two major types of intelligence tests, individual and group, the former is given only to children presenting pressing problems in their relationships with society and is administered by a qualified psychologist or a psychiatrist. The group tests are of a wide variety and are used in the public schools. A sample of this latter type was presented by Miss Kirshenblum, who explained to her listeners that a single test is not the basis for determining a child's I.Q. but rather a number of such tests may be given throughout the child's school life. Fairly consistent scores on the group tests indicate a reasonably authentic picture of the child's abilities as well as his I.Q. Tests used in the elementary grades were also described.

Mr. Tobin elaborated further on the testing program, stating that it is not overdeveloped in the Kingston High School. He explained that the primary purpose of a good testing program is to determine the educational needs of the child and to serve as a guide in the development of the curriculum to meet these needs. And, further, that since the high school guidance personnel and teachers have the accumulative information concerning a child from observation and testing throughout the elementary grades, it is customary to give only one other intelligence test at the ninth year level during the high school career.

He spoke of the development of the testing program during the past decade and warned that guidance will fail when students and parents ignore advice based on test findings.

In conclusion, Harry T. Gumaer, principal of the MJM school summarized the evening's discussion briefly by emphasizing that tests are only one means of diagnosing a child. Written observations, health, records, and report cards are accumulative sources of information which have become a vital part of the guidance program of the school today. Together with home and school cooperation, he stated, today's child is ensured of a well adjusted and happy life.

Upper Hudson 17th Regional Exhibit Scheduled at Albany April 3 to May 4

The 17th regional exhibit of work by artists in the upper Hudson region has been announced and will take place at the Albany Institute of History and Art from April 3 to May 4. Any artist residing within the radius of 100 miles of Albany is eligible. Saturday, March 8, is the last day for receiving entries at the institute. Works will be received up to 5 p. m. on that day.

Requirements

The works eligible for exhibition include oil paintings, watercolors, pastels and sculpture not previously shown at the Albany Institute. Three works may be submitted by each artist, but only two by any artist may be selected. Watercolors and pastels must be suitably framed.

No entry cards are used. Artists should clearly mark each work submitted with their name, title of the picture or object, media, and the price if for sale. Return address of the senders should also be marked on the pieces. This information should be typed or printed clearly and should be firmly attached.

Selections for the exhibit will be made solely by a three-man jury on Wednesday, March 12.

Not less than one painting or object will be purchased by the Institute to be known as the Artists' Annual Purchase Prize for 1952. If means permit more than one will be acquired.

The proceeds from sales go to the artists. The Institute takes no commission.

A private view for exhibitors and Institute members will take place Wednesday, April 2.

The Albany Institute states they will not be responsible for loss or damage to works submitted no matter how caused but assures the same expert care will be used in handling works as is exercised in handling and guarding the permanent collections of the museum.

With regard to the return of work, the Institute expects that artists in the immediate vicinity of Albany will personally transport their own works. Works coming from a greater distance, if accepted by the museum, will be returned prepaid. Unaccepted works must be claimed upon notification.

Additional information regarding the exhibition may be obtained by writing Robert G. Wheeler, Albany Institute of History and Art, 125 Washington avenue, Albany 10.

From One Woman to Another

Dear Carole:

I really have wonderful news for you, and since we've been such good friends for so long I felt that you should be the first to hear about it.

You of course know Jim and how easy-going and considerate he is, and has been for all the nineteen years that we have been married. You also know that he is rarely the one to mention changes around the house or me either. Well—this morning at breakfast Jim really sat up and took notice, of me, that is. For the first time in ages he looked at me and said, "Why honey, you look beautiful." This at 8 in the morning!

My secret? Just a suggestion that I took from my friend Miss Louise Wallace down at the United Cut Rate Drug Store on Wall Street. It all started about six weeks ago. The cold and icy wind had been playing havoc with my skin and I was left with a dry sand-paper complexion, and not very attractive I had to admit. I took myself in to see Miss Wallace and to get her ideas on the proper cream for my face. She recommended L'Estrona hormone cream which I learned supplies the moisture that is lacking in one's skin after reaching 30. She also told me that if I used this cream faithfully every day my reward would be a lovelier, softer, more youthful looking skin within four short weeks. This lanolin rich L'Estrona left my skin fairly glowing and it hasn't been dried out since.

Carole, I want you to be as happy as I, so next time you're uptown stop in at the United Cut Rate Drug Store and get a jar of L'Estrona, and see if your Bill doesn't see the difference too.

As ever,
JOAN.

P. S.—Miss Wallace just phoned to tell me that the regular 8 oz. $4.75 size of L'Estrona Hormone Cream is on special for January at $2.95. A real bargain!

Adult Education Discussion Group Ponders IQ Value at Meeting Monday

Miss Blanche Kirshenblum, guidance teacher, Myron J. Michael Junior High School, and James E. Tobin, guidance director, Kingston High School, were the principal speakers at the Monday meeting of the Adult Education Discussion Group at the KHS library, when the value of the intelligence quotient commonly referred to as I.Q. was analyzed by the speakers and later discussed in open meeting.

A variety of factors notably increase or decrease a child's intellectual ability stated Miss Kirshenblum. It was her opinion that while a child's I.Q. gives an approximate intellectual status, it is not infallable but rather a gauge to the child's capacity to cope with tasks involving the ability to learn.

It was learned from further statements made by the speaker that the most efficacious use of determining a child's I.Q. is in the guidance that can be given by the proper channeling of his studies and abilities.

Test Program

Of the two major types of intelligence tests, individual and group, the former is given only to children presenting pressing problems in their relationships with society and is administered by a qualified psychologist or a psychiatrist. The group tests are of a wide variety and are used in the public schools. A sample of this latter type was presented by Miss Kirshenblum, who explained to her listeners that a single test is not the basis for determining a child's I.Q. but rather a number of such tests may be given throughout the child's school life. Fairly consistent scores on the group tests indicate a reasonably authentic picture of the child's abilities as well as his I.Q. Tests used in the elementary grades were also described.

Mr. Tobin elaborated further on the testing program, stating that it is not overdeveloped in the Kingston High School. He explained that the primary purpose of a good testing program is to determine the educational needs of the child and to serve as a guide in the development of the curriculum to meet these needs. And, further, that since the high school guidance personnel and teachers have the accumulative information concerning a child from observation and testing throughout the elementary grades, it is customary to give only one other intelligence test at the ninth year level during the high school career.

He spoke of the development of the testing program during the past decade and warned that guidance will fail when students and parents ignore advice based on test findings.

In conclusion, Harry T. Gumaer, principal of the MJM school summarized the evening's discussion briefly by emphasizing that tests are only one means of diagnosing a child. Written observations, health, records, and report cards are accumulative sources of information which have become a vital part of the guidance program of the school today. Together with home and school cooperation, he stated, today's child is ensured of a well adjusted and happy life.

Upper Hudson 17th Regional Exhibit Scheduled at Albany April 3 to May 4

The 17th regional exhibit of work by artists in the upper Hudson region has been announced and will take place at the Albany Institute of History and Art from April 3 to May 4. Any artist residing within the radius of 100 miles of Albany is eligible. Saturday, March 8, is the last day for receiving entries at the institute. Works will be received up to 5 p. m. on that day.

Requirements

The works eligible for exhibition include oil paintings, watercolors, pastels and sculpture not previously shown at the Albany Institute. Three works may be submitted by each artist, but only two by any artist may be selected. Watercolors and pastels must be suitably framed.

No entry cards are used. Artists should clearly mark each work submitted with their name, title of the picture or object, media, and the price if for sale. Return address of the senders should also be marked on the pieces. This information should be typed or printed clearly and should be firmly attached.

Selections for the exhibit will be made solely by a three-man jury on Wednesday, March 12.

Not less than one painting or object will be purchased by the Institute to be known as the Artists' Annual Purchase Prize for 1952. If means permit more than one will be acquired.

The proceeds from sales go to the artists. The Institute takes no commission.

A private view for exhibitors and Institute members will take place Wednesday, April 2.

The Albany Institute states they will not be responsible for loss or damage to works submitted no matter how caused but assures the same expert care will be used in handling works as is exercised in handling and guarding the permanent collections of the museum.

With regard to the return of work, the Institute expects that artists in the immediate vicinity of Albany will personally transport their own works. Works coming from a greater distance, if accepted by the museum, will be returned prepaid. Unaccepted works must be claimed upon notification.

Additional information regarding the exhibition may be obtained by writing Robert G. Wheeler, Albany Institute of History and Art, 125 Washington avenue, Albany 10.

Realistic Magicians' Act

Singapore (AP) — Sorcar, the Indian magician, invited 20 persons to the stage to see his most prized act. From a close range, they all swore that Sorcar cut off the tongue of a hypnotized assistant and replace it minutes later without any apparent ill effect on the subject. The act was so convincing that three of the witnesses, all women, fainted.

Local Girl Scout Representatives to Convene With National Group This Month in New York

It was announced following a joint meeting of members of the Ulster County Girl Scout Council and Leaders this week that Mrs. Everett Coty, county commissioner, and Mrs. Richard Holbrook, leaders' representative, will convene in New York city during the week of Jan. 28 to discuss the new reorganization of the council from an area council to an association type.

Plans were made for a county meeting to discuss and probably adopt a new constitution and by-laws April 22. Prior to this time an earnest effort will be made to interest responsible volunteers in the various jobs which must be filled under the new plan. Suggestions for such volunteers may be sent to the local office, 292 Fair street, to leaders or members of the council.

Because of lack of volunteers in the Girl Scout program coupled with unsuccessful fund raising campaigns, those in charge are not entirely satisfied with the progress of Girl Scouting in this county. They are confident, however, that this picture will change in the near future. Mrs. Coty stated following the meeting that "Scouting is definitely not folding up. The charter application was received this week and will be returned to the national office no later than Thursday, January 31."

The annual fund raising drive will open on the Girl Scout Birthday anniversary, March 12. Announcements as to the chairman for the drive will be made later.

Mrs. Coty also remarked that both the council and the leaders group agreed that the most important thing now is the education of qualified adults so that they may see how scouting works, and why the need for volunteers is so great in this county.

Atom Information Deadlock Reported Broken by Nations

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Times said today the United States and Britain "have broken the deadlock over the exchange of information on atomic energy."

They have agreed, the Times said, "to allow a small working party of scientists from both countries to study the specific areas of atomic energy in which the British want to exchange information."

A Washington dispatch by James Reston reported that the two nations "have not agreed to any program for exchanging information."

The story added:

"Nor have they renewed the negotiations that were broken off more than a year ago after the arrest of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British atomic scientist who confessed passing atomic secrets to the Russians. * * * *

"On the subject of atomic energy information, if the American scientists, after the preliminary discussions reach the conclusion that an exchange of atomic information in one or two specific fields will 'substantially benefit the United States,' the question of exchanging information in this specific field or fields will be taken up by the Atomic Commission with the joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy."

Bones Unearthed

In northeastern Iran, in the so-called "Belt Cave" overlooking the Caspian Sea, the bones of three Stone Age people were unearthed in 1951.

Studio and Music

30 volunteers to the scene with a 1,500-gallon tank truck and two pumpers that supplied water from a nearby stream.

The firemen had to return about 11:45 p. m. when burning embers threatened a second outbreak, Chief Poole said.

A home near the former 140-foot chicken house was protected by the fire-fighters, also a large barn.

Valuable Collection

Friends of Miss Richter said her library of music was a valuable collection of her own compositions, and added that the piano was a severe loss.

Chief Pole was not prepared today to estimate the value of the studio, which he said was insured.

Miss Richter had occupied it since early in November and spent many hours on composing, it was said.

One of her works for a woodwind quintet was recently accepted by the National Composers Association, it was reported, and is scheduled to be played in May at the concert called Music of Modern Art.

Other Richter compositions have been played in New York at concerts scheduled by the Columbia University Composers Forum, friends said.

Warren Tells GOP

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower laid out something of a blueprint of their campaign at news conferences.

David Ingalls, Taft manager, and Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.), Eisenhower chairman, both contended their favorites are likely to win the nomination on the first ballot at next July's Republican convention in Chicago.

Lodge challenged Ingall's assertion that the general can't attack Truman administration foreign policies because he represents those policies as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces.

"General Eisenhower owes the administration nothing," Lodge declared. "I think he did them a favor in accepting the NATO command."

Throng Cheers

wide-handed wave of thanks. He originally intended to walk the route but plans were changed suddenly. There was no immediate explanation.

Wife Rides in Procession

Behind him, in another car, rode his wife, Agnes, tears in her eyes.

The cavalcade moved off at 11:50 a. m. (EST). A platoon of mounted policemen led the parade. Then came an army band, a half dozen other marching units.

Directly ahead of Carlsen's car 700 navy midshipmen marched in quick, cadenced step.

"It seems unreal," Carlsen said. "It doesn't seem like I quite fit into it. You know, I've never seen one of these things before except in movies."

The procession began at the Battery at Manhattan's southern tip.

The deafening honk and roar of ship whistles filled the air. Fireboats shot plumes of water skyward, as Carlsen and his party arrived at the Battery aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Sauk.

He smiled and waved his hat at the throng on the shore.

The cutter, escorted by a swarm of other harbor vessels, had brought Carlsen across the harbor from Brooklyn for the start of the Broadway cavalcade.

During the trip across the harbor, police helicopters hovered above. Eighteen vessels were counted in the flotilla that accompanied the crossing.

The 37-year-old captain, of Woodbridge, N. J., arrived here before dawn today by plane from London.

Bones Unearthed

In northeastern Iran, in the so-called "Belt Cave" overlooking the Caspian Sea, the bones of three Stone Age people were unearthed in 1951.

Studio and Music

30 volunteers to the scene with a 1,500-gallon tank truck and two pumpers that supplied water from a nearby stream.

The firemen had to return about 11:45 p. m. when burning embers threatened a second outbreak, Chief Poole said.

A home near the former 140-foot chicken house was protected by the fire-fighters, also a large barn.

Valuable Collection

Friends of Miss Richter said her library of music was a valuable collection of her own compositions, and added that the piano was a severe loss.

Chief Pole was not prepared today to estimate the value of the studio, which he said was insured.

Miss Richter had occupied it since early in November and spent many hours on composing, it was said.

One of her works for a woodwind quintet was recently accepted by the National Composers Association, it was reported, and is scheduled to be played in May at the concert called Music of Modern Art.

Other Richter compositions have been played in New York at concerts scheduled by the Columbia University Composers Forum, friends said.

Warren Tells GOP

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower laid out something of a blueprint of their campaign at news conferences.

David Ingalls, Taft manager, and Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.), Eisenhower chairman, both contended their favorites are likely to win the nomination on the first ballot at next July's Republican convention in Chicago.

Lodge challenged Ingall's assertion that the general can't attack Truman administration foreign policies because he represents those policies as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces.

"General Eisenhower owes the administration nothing," Lodge declared. "I think he did them a favor in accepting the NATO command."

Throng Cheers

wide-handed wave of thanks. He originally intended to walk the route but plans were changed suddenly. There was no immediate explanation.

Wife Rides in Procession

Behind him, in another car, rode his wife, Agnes, tears in her eyes.

The cavalcade moved off at 11:50 a. m. (EST). A platoon of mounted policemen led the parade. Then came an army band, a half dozen other marching units.

Directly ahead of Carlsen's car 700 navy midshipmen marched in quick, cadenced step.

"It seems unreal," Carlsen said. "It doesn't seem like I quite fit into it. You know, I've never seen one of these things before except in movies."

The procession began at the Battery at Manhattan's southern tip.

The deafening honk and roar of ship whistles filled the air. Fireboats shot plumes of water skyward, as Carlsen and his party arrived at the Battery aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Sauk.

He smiled and waved his hat at the throng on the shore.

The cutter, escorted by a swarm of other harbor vessels, had brought Carlsen across the harbor from Brooklyn for the start of the Broadway cavalcade.

During the trip across the harbor, police helicopters hovered above. Eighteen vessels were counted in the flotilla that accompanied the crossing.

The 37-year-old captain, of Woodbridge, N. J., arrived here before dawn today by plane from London.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A mandatory 40-hour week for municipal policemen was urged today in the Legislature by two Republicans and the Police Conference of the State of New York.

A bill, killed in Senate committees in past years, was introduced by Senator Seymour Halpern of Queens and Assemblyman Julius Volker of Lancaster to require the 40-hour week, except in emergencies.

The police conference, which claims 40,000 members in 191 municipalities, has spearheaded a campaign for the shorter work week.

It claims the 40-hour week is needed to help stop resignations and provide better working conditions for police.

In a joint statement, Halpern and Volker said that "policemen now work on a 48-hour-week basis, which is out of step with the social and economic working conditions in our state and nation."

Meanwhile, legislative leaders decided not to make "party" measures of bills to legalize the manufacture and sale of yellow oleo and for a system of permanent personal registration of voters.

Opposition to Measures

There is considerable opposition to both measures from rural Republicans, and the GOP chiefs apparently are counting on Democratic votes to help squeeze the bills through.

Other measures introduced would:

1—Amend the state constitution to permit transfer of civil cases from State Supreme Court to county courts. (Senator Thomas C. Desmond, R.-Newburgh).

2—Direct the Senate and Assembly stenographers to file an official record of legislative debates and proceedings in a Capitol library as a public record. (Assemblyman William E. Clancy, D.-Queens.)

3—Bar members of the Communist party or any subversive group from jury service, and require all jurors to sign an oath of allegiance to the United States. (Assemblyman Thomas A. Duffy, D.-Queens.)

Sees End of Jam

Desmond said his bill to transfer civil cases would help "break a log jam of cases which now crowd Supreme Court calendars and obstruct justice."

The senator also proposed a constitutional amendment to permit trial of a county court case in the county in which the plaintiff resides. At the present time, if the plaintiff and defendant live in different counties, the case must be tried in the defendant's county.

Desmond said this measure also would help alleviate congestion in the courts.

To become effective, a constitutional amendment must be passed by two separate legislatures and approved by the voters.

Says Railroad Profits

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—An economist says the commuter fare rate rise asked by the New York Central Rail road should be rejected on the grounds of company "speculation and hypotheses" and that the road "is actually making a profit and not a loss." Victor Perlo, economist for the Westchester County American Labor party, made the assertions yesterday during the rate hearing conducted by the Public Service Commission. In a statement to the press Perlo said the company was making an actual minimum monthly profit of $99,839 on commutation fares. He said the railroad plea for a 30 per cent increase was based on wage rates and materiel prices calculated for the railroad as a whole and not for the commutation area. He said the actual increases in operating expenses for the railroad as a whole was not 30 per cent but less than 7 per cent. Perlo said the railroad "is trying to charge commuters six per cent interest on the money used to buy cars but which is not the railroad's but borrowed by the railroad at a cost of about three per cent."

Dr. Jacobson Is Rotary Speaker

Dr. Joseph J. Jacobson, local surgeon and director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon-meeting Wednesday.

In his interesting and highly illuminating discussion on early diagnosis, treatment and eradication of tuberculosis, Dr. Jacobson demonstrated the mechanics of the local health institution through the aid of a chart upon which he sketched the participation in this work by the tuberculosis hospital, the health department, the clinic and the mobile clinic in the county, which gives service to the people outside the corporate limits of the city, the local hospitals, the Kingston Laboratory, welfare department, medical profession, the New York State Rehabilitation Department, the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association and the State Department of Health.

Through these various departments, institutions and associations, the X-ray work and screening are done and the results reported directly to the proper departments. The functions of these cooperating agencies also were described by the director.

In the brief period of questioning, it was brought out that arrested cases should continue their periodic check-ups; the disease in older people can be just as bad as in the case of younger people; there now are 52 patients in the hospital; the outlook for complete eradication of the disease is not as near at hand as previously anticipated.

Edson's 79th Birthday

Wednesday's meeting also was the occasion of Harry L. Edson's 79th birthday and it was fittingly observed. Emil G. Boessneck, Jr. in behalf of the club paid the genial secretary of the local service club a well-deserved tribute for his work among the young people of this community. He said Harry's life was exemplary of the Rotary International motto, "Service Above Self."

Tickets for the musical comedy, Brigadoon, which will be presented at the Kingston High School Auditorium Tuesday night, were distributed to the members for distribution to the public.

Following the meeting, the Rotarians, who were guests of Edwin T. Strong, visited Danskammer Point, where the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. has erected a 60,000 kilowatt steam station. The new steam station is one of the most efficient plants of its kind in the United States.

Average Earnings Cited

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Average weekly earnings of manufacturing workers in New York state in November, 1951, were $66.08, the State Labor Department reported today. The figure was $4 higher than for the previous November. Last October the average was $64.20. Average hourly earnings last November were $1.66, one cent higher than for the previous month and 11 cents over the November, 1950, level. Last November, the state-wide average of hours worked a week was 39.7. This was over the 39 hours for October but under the 40.1 hours average for November, 1950.

Broiled Sweetbreads Make a Gala Party Dish

BROILED SWEETBREADS on broiled pineapple slice and ham makes a flavorsome combination, and a wonderful party dish.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Broiled sweetbreads make a wonderful party dish. They can be prepared ahead of time and rushed under the broiler at the last moment.

Broiled Sweetbreads on Ham
(4 servings)

One pair calf sweetbreads, about 1 pound, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash nutmeg, 4 thin slices cooked ham, about ½ pound; 4 slices canned pineapple, 8-ounce can.

Cook sweetbreads as soon as possible after purchase, defrosting partially before cooking, if necessary. Drop sweetbreads into enough boiling salted water to float them freely. Bring to boil again and simmer gently for 15 minutes. Drain immediately and plunge into ice water to cool.

Remove membrane with a sharp knife, or slip off with fingers under water. Cut out any dark veins. Drain well. Keep in refrigerator until ready to use.

Blend together the fat and kitchen bouquet, then stir in the lemon juice, salt and nutmeg. Arrange slices of ham on greased, pre-heated broiling pan. The slices should be about 5 inches square. Divide sweetbreads into four equal portions and place one piece in center of each slice of ham.

Drain the pineapple and halve each slice. Place a half slice of pineapple on either side of the sweetbread, on each slice of ham. Brush kitchen bouquet mixture over tops of sweetbreads and pineapple.

Place in pre-heated broiling compartment and broil 4 inches from moderate heat until thoroughly hot and lightly browned (about 10 minutes). Remove from broiler and serve immediately in shallow heated ramekins.

Tripe is an inexpensive meat specialty that is very good, too. Cut fresh tripe in small pieces for quicker cooking.

Pepper Pot Stew
(4 generous servings)

One pound fresh honeycomb tripe, 6 cups water, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, 1 cup finely diced onion, ½ cup finely diced celery, 1 cup sliced carrots, 2 cups diced potatoes, ½ cup elbow macaroni, ½ cup diced green pepper, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms.

Cut tripe in one-inch squares. Place in saucepan or Dutch oven. Add water, salt and pepper. Bring to boil and cook, covered, over moderate heat until tripe is nearly tender (about 45 minutes).

Add onion, celery, carrots, potatoes and macaroni. Bring to boil again and continue cooking, covered, until vegetables are barely tender and macaroni is done, about 15 minutes or so.

Add green pepper, parsley and contents of cans of tomato sauce and mushrooms. Bring to boil and let simmer for 5 minutes. Correct seasoning if necessary. Serve immediately with crisp French bread.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Apple sauce, ready to eat cereal, enriched toast, butter or fortified margarine, peach jam, coffee or milk.

LUNCHEON: Cream of Tomato soup, toasted cheese sandwich, canned peaches, cookies, tea or milk.

DINNER: Broiled sweetbreads and ham with pineapple slices, Parker House rolls, butter or fortified margarine, green peas, coconut cup cakes, coffee or milk.

Industry Facing Engineer Shortage

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The nation's defense industry faces a shortage of 40,000 to 70,000 thousand engineers this summer.

The U. S. Office of Education and the American Society for Engineering Education said in a joint report issued yesterday that there was "a dangerous gap" between the supply of engineers and the demand.

The report said only 28,000 engineering students would be graduated this year "to meet the current demand of from 60,000 to 90,000 engineers." Last year 38,000 were graduated.

The report added:

"Since many of the 1952 graduates are either members of ROTC units or are subject to the draft, having been granted deferments to complete their college courses, defense industry is likely to find itself with a deficit of from 40,000 to 70,000 thousand engineers."

The study showed that the number of freshman engineering students this year was 16.2 per cent greater than in 1950.

However, the report said, "industry will not have a chance to benefit by this increase until four years hence, when it will find that it has heavy competition from the armed services, since an increasing number of freshmen are joining ROTC units."

The George Washington memorial bridge, New York, contains enough wire to go around the earth four times.

He had been owner of the baseball teams for many years.

Briggs was reported to have been stricken Sunday with a kidney infection. Since Monday night he had been confined to bed. He died at 7:15 a. m. today.

He would have been 75 Feb. 27.

West Shokan Still Boss and Caprotti Begin Sentences

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Four members of a 17-man bootleg ring, who had pleaded guilty and were sentenced in December on charges of having defrauded the government of nearly $4,000,000 in taxes, surrendered yesterday in federal court and began serving their jail terms.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Julian A. Frank said the leader of the ring, Vito Giallo, 48, had two addresses—17 Prospect street, Brewster, N. Y., and 1221 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn.

Frank said Giallo had been a bootlegger since prohibition days and operated stills in Mahopac and West Shokan, N. Y. Sentences of a year and a day in federal prison were imposed on Giallo and Thomas Zaffiro.

The other two members of the group Joseph Palmeri and John Caprotti, were sentenced to six months and two months, respectively.

UMBRELLA DANGER

A man writes: "Riding a bus to work the other morning, I noticed a woman passenger pushing through the crowded vehicle handling her umbrella in a dangerous fashion, and it occurred to me how this necessary aid to humanity is so often abused and can really be made an instrument of torture to others in subways, buses and public places. If you will act as intermediary in the alleviation of this condition, you will go down in history as a real humanitarian."

I can't quite understand how a closed umbrella is made dangerous, unless it is held in a pointing upward position instead of being carried as it should be like a cane pointing toward the ground. I do agree, however, that when carrying an open umbrella on the street it can be very dangerous and exacts careful attention when ever the carrier has to pass close to another person. It must either be lifted up so that its points go well above the head of another, or lowered so that its points cannot strike the face of another person.

Mother Is Right

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiance and I like skiing very much and as there is no place in the immediate vicinity for this, we would like to go to a well-known resort lodge about a hundred miles from here for the weekend. Would this be at all proper, or is it likely to be fatal to my reputation as my mother seems to think?

Answer: I'm really sorry to have to say that unless you can make plans to join a group of your family's who will act as chaperon, your mother is right.

You Pay, Of Course!

Dear Mrs. Post: When you find it necessary to make a long distance telephone call when visiting someone, should you insist on paying for it, or just apologize for the necessity of making the call?

Answer: Correctly, you call Central and find out the toll charge and leave the exact amount at the telephone with the number called on a slip of paper.

Should my engagement be announced publicly through the newspaper or by writing notes to my friends? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-1, "Engagements," includes the details on announcing an engagement. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Loophole Is Denied

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Internal Revenue Bureau denies there is a major loophole in the federal gambling tax law. The bureau agreed with the Providence, R. I., Journal today that a bookie might escape prosecution by buying a gambling stamp before the end of the month during which he was arrested for accepting bets. But regardless of what action a gambler takes or when he accepted bets, the bureau said, the government has no case unless it can prove the gambler was engaged in "willful evasion" of the law.

Loophole Is Denied

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Internal Revenue Bureau denies there is a major loophole in the federal gambling tax law. The bureau agreed with the Providence, R. I., Journal today that a bookie might escape prosecution by buying a gambling stamp before the end of the month during which he was arrested for accepting bets. But regardless of what action a gambler takes or when he accepted bets, the bureau said, the government has no case unless it can prove the gambler was engaged in "willful evasion" of the law.

Industry Facing Engineer Shortage

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The nation's defense industry faces a shortage of 40,000 to 70,000 thousand engineers this summer.

The U. S. Office of Education and the American Society for Engineering Education said in a joint report issued yesterday that there was "a dangerous gap" between the supply of engineers and the demand.

The report said only 28,000 engineering students would be graduated this year "to meet the current demand of from 60,000 to 90,000 engineers." Last year 38,000 were graduated.

The report added:

"Since many of the 1952 graduates are either members of ROTC units or are subject to the draft, having been granted deferments to complete their college courses, defense industry is likely to find itself with a deficit of from 40,000 to 70,000 thousand engineers."

The study showed that the number of freshman engineering students this year was 16.2 per cent greater than in 1950.

However, the report said, "industry will not have a chance to benefit by this increase until four years hence, when it will find that it has heavy competition from the armed services, since an increasing number of freshmen are joining ROTC units."

West Shokan Still Boss and Caprotti Begin Sentences

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Four members of a 17-man bootleg ring, who had pleaded guilty and were sentenced in December on charges of having defrauded the government of nearly $4,000,000 in taxes, surrendered yesterday in federal court and began serving their jail terms.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Julian A. Frank said the leader of the ring, Vito Giallo, 48, had two addresses—17 Prospect street, Brewster, N. Y., and 1221 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn.

Frank said Giallo had been a bootlegger since prohibition days and operated stills in Mahopac and West Shokan, N. Y. Sentences of a year and a day in federal prison were imposed on Giallo and Thomas Zaffiro.

The other two members of the group Joseph Palmeri and John Caprotti, were sentenced to six months and two months, respectively.

Major Loop Moguls May Face Serious '52 Contract Talks

Few Regulars Signed For Coming Campaign

New York, Jan. 17 (AP) — Although there are few well-defined holdouts as of today in the major leagues, advance rumblings — especially on the three New York clubs — indicate trouble ahead for the moguls.

An Associated Press survey of the 16 big league baseball teams indicate the Yankees, Giants and Dodgers each has a long way to go before it can field a team and probably face some serious holdout battles before spring training gets underway next month.

The champion Yankees thus far have announced the signing only of Pitcher Ed Lopat and their 39-year-old utility first-baseman, Johnny Mize.

The Giants, who went down battling in the world series, also have only two regulars officially within the fold. Outfielders Monte Irvin and Don Mueller.

Brooklyn, which refused to die until Bobby Thomson hit that home run in the final inning of the National League play-off, has signed seven but of its regular players has obtained the signatures only of Roy Campanella, and Outfielder Carl Furillo.

Rumor has it the Dodgers are asking several regulars, including Pafko, to take pay cuts and that the debate might run far into February.

Branca Rejects Terms

Ralph Branca, who pitched the home run to Thomson, has rejected an offer calling for the same salary he earned last year.

Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and Catcher Yogi Berra of the Yanks already have called upon General Manager George Weiss for "feeling out" talks.

The Giants are being generous —they exactly doubled Irvin's salary to $25,000—but it seems virtually certain they will have to negotiate with Sal Maglie who rang up 23 victories last season and placed second in the National League in earned run averages.

Cleveland's Larry Doby said only yesterday that he has been told he'll be asked to take a cut, although he hasn't seen his contract yet.

"I will not accept a cut," said Doby.

Pitcher Bob Lemon, Cleveland's highest paid player last year at around $50,000, is expected to kick loud and long before accepting a cut proferred by the Indians. Bob Feller is in the fold at an estimated $55,000, and so are third-baseman Al Rosen and outfielder Harry Simpson.

Pitcher Ewell Blackwell, the Cincinnati Reds' highest paid performer at about $25,000, has signed as has pitcher Ken Raffensberger.

Two members of the Washington Senators, outfielder Gil Coan and second-baseman Cass Michaels, have fired their contracts back unsigned. Irv Noren, crack young centerfielder, was in the fold at a reported $16,000.

The Boston Red Sox, whose payroll was reduced drastically by the marines' call-up of Ted Williams, look for little trouble. Dom DiMaggio, now probably their top hand at an estimated $30,000, has inked a contract along with pitchers Maury McDermott and Ellis Kinder and first-baseman Walt Dropo. Kinder reported a "satisfactory raise" for appearing in 63 games last season.

Evers May Balk

Detroit already has signed six, including pitchers Art Houtteman at an estimated $22,000 and Virgil Trucks at $18,000. There is speculation Hoot Evers may balk at taking a cut after a poor season.

Neither Chicago club has reported any rejections so far. The White Sox have signed their sensational sophomore outfielder, Minnie Minoso, at around $12-13,000, pitcher Billy Pierce at $15,000 or better, and Chico Carrasquel at $20,000.

Pittsburgh anticipates no difficulty signing Ralph Kiner, who was in the over-$50,000 bracket last year. Pete Castiglione, an infielder, signed yesterday.

Garver Inks Contract

The St. Louis Browns had little trouble signing their 20-game winning pitcher, Ned Garver. The righthander signed his contract yesterday after a one-minute conference with owner Bill Veeck. Garver was believed to have been boosted from $18,000 to $25,000 a year.

Pitcher Cliff Fannin, catcher Matt Batts, second baseman Mike Goliat and outfielder Jim Rivera also have signed with the Browns.

Other clubs have not announced signings or holdouts.

Race Scene Switches

Miami, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Florida's mob of horse race followers, after a record betting binge at Tropical Park, moved over to glamorous Hialeah today for a meeting that seems a sure thing to be the lushest in the history of this winter tourist mecca. There were predictions that Hialeah's pari-mutuel machines, in their beautiful setting of palm trees, flowers and flamingos, would handle $60,000,000 during the 40-day program. The record was $53,308,007 in 1946.

Mays Is Accepted For U. S. Service

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 17 (AP)—New York Giant centerfielder Willie Mays will be called into military service soon.

The 20-year-old Negro was accepted for the armed forces in a second test at the pre-induction center here yesterday. He was rejected when he failed an aptitude test at his first test last October.

Mays said he hoped to be assigned to the army, and to play baseball on a service team. The young player said he regretted deeply losing two years of experience, but "maybe I'll learn some baseball in the army."

His draft board quota for this month has been filled. A Third Army public information officer at Atlanta indicated that Mays would be called into uniform in late February or early March.

HV Cagers Rout Firemen, 87-64

The crack Harlem Valley All Stars trounced the Esopus Firemen, 87-64, Tuesday night on the Wiltwyck court in Esopus.

Described as the strongest quintet the Firemen have faced this season, the Dutchess county cagers turned the game into a rout after being hard pressed to lead, 33-31, at the half.

Harry Belter, Harlem's 6 foot 8 inch center, led the scoring with 28 points and his brother Walter, 6 foot 4, dropped 15 points.

Marvin Doerksen led Esopus with 18 points and Richie Mains hit for 16. A scoring oddity was the fact that all 18 players who saw action crashed the scoring column.

Still Blanked, 44-0

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Maggie Walker High School girls' basketball team tried its darndest to make a basket in a game here last night. The ball caromed off the backboard, it did dipsy-doos around the edge of the ring. Often it looked as if, for a certainty it would go through the nets. But it didn't—nary a time. Carver High, of Chester, won the game by a shutout, 44-0.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Father Maurus Fitzgerald, O.F.M., athletic director at Siena College, was talking about athletic scholarships, frankly and above board.

"Sure, we're interested in good athletic talent," he admitted, "but we insist on two things. First the boy must be qualified academically and, more important, he must have a genuine desire to study at Siena."

Father Fitzgerald discreetly avoided reference to any "name" players who might not have met those rigid requirements in recent Siena history, but the inference was plain.

"We have learned by bitter experience," he continued, "that a boy who goes to any college merely for the sake of athletic gratuities, is a bad risk and influence. Up here we insist that he have an honest desire to be a Siena student. If we feel that he cares only about his athletic scholarship, we're not interested in him, no matter how many basketballs he can put through a hoop."

And how does Father Fitzgerald detect the symptoms?

"There are ways," he said. "Sooner or later you can see it written all over a lad who is interested in basketball but not the school."

Such philosophy practiced by other schools would be a definite step toward a more wholesome student athlete type who is blessed with sufficient natural sports skill to merit a scholarship. It seems to be working pretty at the Loudonville institution which is slowly, but surely, gaining national prestige and recognition as a basketball power, while maintaining high scholastic standards.

Fireman Eddie Pagan's victory in the recent West Palm Beach amateur golf tournament was a source of great satisfaction to the local Florida winter golfing set, notably Judge Harry Schirick and John Van Gonsic, who have been touting Pagan for several years. A junior ski instruction program has moved into high gear at Belleayre Mt. Ski Center, according to a note from Arthur Draper, superintendent, and KHS ski devotees in large numbers are taking advantage of the free instruction periods.

Four instructors headed by Dot Nebel, the ski school director, sent nearly 45 KHS students through the paces last week. Some practiced basic fundamentals, while others used the chair lift and learned how to negotiate ski trails under full control.

Draper says KHS is a pioneer in the promotion of skiing among its students and its present program calls for six periods of instruction. Students who take part receive phys. ed. credits for skiing and are excused from the last period in school. Chaperoned by a faculty member, the skiing tyros arrive at Belleayre about 3 p. m. and are on their way by 5 p. m.

Indiana basketball players had worried about the effects of high altitude when they invaded 7,000-foot high Laramie to meet the Wyoming Cowboys.

Branch McCracken gathered his men together for a talk.

"This talk of high altitude is nonsense, men," the Indiana coach declared. "I don't want anyone blaming a bad night on the altitude."

Suddenly, just as McCracken was warming up, he felt a trickle down his nose.

It was the first of four nose bleeds.

New WSB Ruling May Wash Out Expected Pay Boosts Due National League Champs

Giants May Be Forced To Follow '51 Roll

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Giants, National League pennant winners, may get hurt by a new government ruling on baseball salaries, a major league club official predicts.

Pennant winners usually boost salaries sharply the following year. The new ruling doesn't cover this and the Giants apparently will not be able to spend more than in 1951.

"It'll hurt the Giants unless they can get released as a special case from the salary board," Calvin Griffith, vice president of the Washington Senators, told a reporter after he heard about the new policy.

The new policy announced last night set a ceiling on club payrolls rather than salaries of individual players, as the old rule did.

It gives club owners this choice of a payroll ceilings:

1. The payroll in any year from 1946 through 1950 plus a flat 10 per cent.

2. The payroll in 1951 without the 10 per cent. Included in the payroll are all players, player-coaches and player-managers but no administrative personnel.

Musial's Salary Undecided

The club may parcel out its payroll to players any way it wants.

Left temporarily unanswered were these questions:

1. Would the St. Louis Cardinals' Stan Musial, the National League's top hitter last year, get his long-sought 1951 increase from $50,000 to a reported $85,000?

One official connected with the board said flatly: "We don't make it retroactive."

But another told a reporter he was certain it was the board's intent in writing the new policy to take care of Musial's salary problem.

2. What would happen to a club like the Giants? Griffith said pennant winners normally increase their payroll by 20 and sometimes 25 per cent the following year.

Obviously a 10 per cent payroll raise over 1946-50 rates—or no raise over last year's rates—would, as Griffith put it, "hurt the Giants."

May Get Special Release

One part of the new policy may be designed for just such a contingency. It says that if a club's proposed budget exceeds the ceiling "because of unusual circumstances" that club may petition the board for "special release."

The New York Yankees, last year's World Series winner, would seem to be in the clear.

Joe DiMaggio has announced he won't be on the ball field next year. That means the Yankees will have DiMaggio's reported $100,000 salary to play around with.

And the Boston Red Sox may come out very well indeed if Ted Williams doesn't collect his reported $100,000 salary. He may be in the U. S. Marines.

The new policy was formulated under pressure from the major leagues—and incidentally from Musial, who made a personal plea to the salary board two weeks ago for release. Officials said it would be put out as a formal regulation within a few days. They said it would apply to all organized baseball but the major leagues and the Pacific Coast League would be the only ones affected in any great way.

Feb. 1 is the deadline for the clubs to have 1952 contracts in the hands of their players. That's one reason the board hurried to make the new policy public.

Can-Am Deadline Extended 20 Days

A 20-day extension for payment of club guarantees to the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues has been granted the Canadian-American League, President Albert E. Houghton of Schenectady said last night.

Deadline for payment was Jan. 10, but George Trautman, National Association president, extended the date to February 1. In the annual meeting in Oneonta last Nov. 13, league officials postponed a decision on 1951 operations until December 15. A snowstorm wiped out that session.

Houghton said that he will call a meeting either for this Saturday or a week from Saturday at Schenectady for final action on whether the circuit will operate next season.

Pro Grid Teams Make Picks Today

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The National Football League, having all but officially rejected Commissioner Bert Bell's proposals for elimination of the point after touchdown and for a sudden death playoff of tie games, swung into the first order of business today—the annual college draft.

The convention opened with a special bonus choice in which only seven of the 12 teams were eligible. They included Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago Cardinals, Los Angeles, New York Yanks, San Francisco and Green Bay. The others were not eligible as they had received bonus picks in previous years.

After the draft, which was expected to last far into the night, come the business sessions.

In additions to wrangling over the rules, the club owners were prepared to listen to the complaints of Ted Collins, owner of the Yanks.

Collins, who has settled all his obligations to remain in good standing in the league, was expected to demand more lucrative home dates than he had last year.

Duke to Head Field

Goshen, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Duke of Lullwater, top money winning two-year-old of 1951, heads a field of 73 three-year-old trotters still eligible for the Hambletonian Stakes to be raced at Good Time Park in August. Payments of $259 were made on each of the 73 Jan. 1. A final payment of $500 for horses starting in the trotting classic is due two days before the race. If as many as 15 start, the race will be worth around $90,000. The Duke, a son of Volomite owned by Walter T. Candler of Decatur, Ga., won $59,270 last year in winning 14 of his 16 starts.

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—After two weeks in second place, Kentucky again took over as the nation's No. 1 offensive major college basketball team today, according to statistics of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

With 83 points against Xavier of Cincinnati and 99 against Florida, the Wildcats show an average of 84.3 points per game in contests through last Saturday. West Virginia is a distant second with a mark of 78.8.

Major Loop Moguls May Face Serious '52 Contract Talks

Few Regulars Signed For Coming Campaign

New York, Jan. 17 (AP) — Although there are few well-defined holdouts as of today in the major leagues, advance rumblings — especially on the three New York clubs — indicate trouble ahead for the moguls.

An Associated Press survey of the 16 big league baseball teams indicate the Yankees, Giants and Dodgers each has a long way to go before it can field a team and probably face some serious holdout battles before spring training gets underway next month.

The champion Yankees thus far have announced the signing only of Pitcher Ed Lopat and their 39-year-old utility first-baseman, Johnny Mize.

The Giants, who went down battling in the world series, also have only two regulars officially within the fold, Outfielders Monte Irvin and Don Mueller.

Brooklyn, which refused to die until Bobby Thomson hit that home run in the final inning of the National League play-off, has signed seven but of its regular players has obtained the signatures only of Roy Campanella, and Outfielder Carl Fulillo.

Rumor has it the Dodgers are asking several regulars, including Parko, to take pay cuts and that the debate might run far into February.

Branca Rejects Terms

Ralph Branca, who pitched the home run to Thomson, has rejected an offer calling for the same salary he earned last year.

Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and Catcher Yogi Berra of the Yanks already have called upon General Manager George Weiss for "feeling out" talks.

The Giants are being generous —they exactly doubled Irvin's salary to $25,000—but it seems virtually certain they will have to negotiate with Sal Maglie who rang up 23 victories last season and placed second in the National League in earned run averages.

Cleveland's Larry Doby said only yesterday that he has been told he'll be asked to take a cut, although he hasn't seen his contract yet.

"I will not accept a cut," said Doby.

Pitcher Bob Lemon, Cleveland's highest paid player last year at around $50,000, is expected to kick loud and long before accepting a cut proferred by the Indians. Bob Feller is in the fold at an estimated $55,000, and so are third-baseman Al Rosen and outfielder Harry Simpson.

Pitcher Ewell Blackwell, the Cincinnati Reds' highest paid performer at about $25,000, has signed as has pitcher Ken Raffensberger.

Two members of the Washington Senators, outfielder Gil Coan and second-baseman Cass Michaels, have fired their contracts back unsigned. Irv Noren, crack young centerfielder, was in the fold at a reported $16,000.

The Boston Red Sox, whose payroll was reduced drastically by the marines' call-up of Ted Williams, look for little trouble. Dom DiMaggio, now probably their top hand at an estimated $30,000, has inked a contract along with pitchers Maury McDermott and Ellis Kinder and first-baseman Walt Dropo. Kinder reported a "satisfactory raise" for appearing in 63 games last season.

Evers May Balk

Detroit already has signed six, including pitchers Art Houtteman at an estimated $22,000 and Virgil Trucks at $18,000. There is speculation Hoot Evers may balk at taking a cut after a poor season.

Neither Chicago club has reported any rejections so far. The White Sox have signed their sensational sophomore outfielder, Minnie Minoso, at around $12-13,000, pitcher Billy Pierce at $15,000 or better, and Chico Carrasquel at $20,000.

Pittsburgh anticipates no difficulty signing Ralph Kiner, who was in the over-$50,000 bracket last year. Pete Castiglione, an infielder, signed yesterday.

Garver Inks Contract

The St. Louis Browns had little trouble signing their 20-game winning pitcher, Ned Garver. The righthander signed his contract yesterday after a one-minute conference with owner Bill Veeck. Garver was believed to have been boosted from $18,000 to $25,000 a year.

Pitcher Cliff Fannin, catcher Matt Batts, second baseman Mike Goliat and outfielder Jim Rivera also have signed with the Browns.

Other clubs have not announced signings or holdouts.

Race Scene Switches

Miami, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Florida's mob of horse race followers, after a record betting binge at Tropical Park, moved over to glamorous Hialeah today for a meeting that seems a sure thing to be the lushest in the history of this winter tourist mecca. There were predictions that Hialeah's pari-mutuel machines, in their beautiful setting of palm trees, flowers and flamingos, would handle $60,000,000 during the 40-day program. The record was $53,308,007 in 1946.

Mays Is Accepted For U. S. Service

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 17 (AP)—New York Giant centerfielder Willie Mays will be called into military service soon.

The 20-year-old Negro was accepted for the armed forces in a second test at the pre-induction center here yesterday. He was rejected when he failed an aptitude test at his first test last October.

Mays said he hoped to be assigned to the army, and to play baseball on a service team. The young player said he regretted deeply losing two years of experience, but "maybe I'll learn some baseball in the army."

His draft board quota for this month has been filled. A Third Army public information officer at Atlanta indicated that Mays would be called into uniform in late February or early March.

HV Cagers Rout Firemen, 87-64

The crack Harlem Valley All Stars trounced the Esopus Firemen, 87-64, Tuesday night on the Wiltwyck court in Esopus.

Described as the strongest quintet the Firemen have faced this season, the Dutchess county cagers turned the game into a rout after being hard pressed to lead, 33-31, at the half.

Harry Belter, Harlem's 6 foot 8 inch center, led the scoring with 28 points and his brother Walter, 6 foot 4, dropped 15 points.

Marvin Doerksen led Esopus with 18 points and Richie Mains hit for 16. A scoring oddity was the fact that all 18 players who saw action crashed the scoring column.

Still Blanked, 44-0

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Maggie Walker High School girls' basketball team tried its darndest to make a basket in a game here last night. The ball caromed off the backboard, it did dipsy-doos around the edge of the ring. Often it looked as if, for a certainty, it would go through the nets. But it didn't—nary a time. Carver High, of Chester, won the game by a shutout, 44-0.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Father Maurus Fitzgerald, O.F.M., athletic director at Siena College, was talking about athletic scholarships, frankly and above board.

"Sure, we're interested in good athletic talent," he admitted, "but we insist on two things. First the boy must be qualified academically and, more important, he must have a genuine desire to study at Siena."

Father Fitzgerald discreetly avoided reference to any "name" players who might not have met those rigid requirements in recent Siena history, but the inference was plain.

"We have learned by bitter experience," he continued, "that a boy who goes to any college merely for the sake of athletic gratuities, is a bad risk and influence. Up here we insist that he have an honest desire to be a Siena student. If we feel that he cares only about his athletic scholarship, we're not interested in him, no matter how many basketballs he can put through a hoop."

And how does Father Fitzgerald detect the symptoms?

"There are ways," he said. "Sooner or later you can see it written all over a lad who is interested in basketball but not the school."

Such philosophy practiced by other schools would be a definite step toward a more wholesome student athlete type who is blessed with sufficient natural sports skill to merit a scholarship. It seems to be working pretty at the Loudonville institution which is slowly, but surely, gaining national prestige and recognition as a basketball power, while maintaining high scholastic standards.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Fireman Eddie Pagan's victory in the recent West Palm Beach amateur golf tournament was a source of great satisfaction to the local Florida winter golfing set, notably Judge Harry Schirick and John Van Gonsic, who have been touting Pagan for several years. Speaking of golf reminds us that we saw Judge Cashin, Irving Eyles, Bill Edelmuth and Harry Schneider come barging out of the Rondout National Bank, their faces wreathed in smiles. Couldn't have been golf, they don't all play that well at the same time. Julie Jamieson, the Fighting Parson from Wappingers Falls who appeared on one of the last local amateur cards, headlines a professional boxing show tonight in Paterson. Mel Seeman, trainer and manager of the crack Canadian amateur boxing squads, postcards Joe Kelly that the manly art of scrambly ears is having difficulty in the dominion, just like in the U. S. Aside to Johnny Ferraro: Tell your friend, Morrie Cramer of Albany, that Phil Versace of Poughkeepsie is ready to meet him in a big money match.

A junior ski instruction program has moved into high gear at Belleayre Mt. Ski Center, according to a note from Arthur Draper, superintendent, and KHS ski devotees in large numbers are taking advantage of the free instruction periods.

Four instructors headed by Dot Nebel, the ski school director, sent nearly 45 KHS students through the paces last week. Some practiced basic fundamentals, while others used the chair lift and learned how to negotiate ski trails under full control.

Draper says KHS is a pioneer in the promotion of skiing among its students and its present program calls for six periods of instruction. Students who take part receive phys. ed. credits for skiing and are excused from the last period in school. Chaperoned by a faculty member, the skiing tyros arrive at Belleayre about 3 p. m. and are on their way by 5 p. m.

Indiana basketball players had worried about the effects of high altitude when they invaded 7,000-foot high Laramie to meet the Wyoming Cowboys.

Branch McCracken gathered his men together for a talk.

"This talk of high altitude is nonsense, men," the Indiana coach declared. "I don't want anyone blaming a bad night on the altitude."

Suddenly, just as McCracken was warming up, he felt a trickle down his nose.

It was the first of four nose bleeds.

New WSB Ruling May Wash Out Expected Pay Boosts Due National League Champs

Giants May Be Forced To Follow '51 Roll

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The New York Giants, National League pennant winners, may get hurt by a new government ruling on baseball salaries, a major league club official predicts.

Pennant winners usually boost salaries sharply the following year. The new ruling doesn't cover this and the Giants apparently will not be able to spend more than in 1951.

"It'll hurt the Giants unless they can get released as a special case from the salary board," Calvin Griffith, vice president of the Washington Senators, told a reporter after he heard about the new policy.

The new policy announced last night set a ceiling on club payrolls rather than salaries of individual players, as the old rule did.

It gives club owners this choice of a payroll ceilings:

1. The payroll in any year from 1946 through 1950 plus a flat 10 per cent.

2. The payroll in 1951 without the 10 per cent. Included in the payroll are all players, player-coaches and player-managers but no administrative personnel.

Musial's Salary Undecided

The club may parcel out its payroll to players any way it wants.

Left temporarily unanswered were these questions:

1. Would the St. Louis Cardinals' Stan Musial, the National League's top hitter last year, get his long-sought 1951 increase from $50,000 to a reported $85,000?

One official connected with the board said flatly: "We don't make it retroactive."

But another told a reporter he was certain it was the board's intent in writing the new policy to take care of Musial's salary problem.

2. What would happen to a club like the Giants? Griffith said pennant winners normally increase their payroll by 20 and sometimes 25 per cent the following year.

Obviously a 10 per cent payroll raise over 1946-50 rates—or no raise over last year's rates—would, as Griffith put it, "hurt the Giants."

May Get Special Release

One part of the new policy may be designed for just such a contingency. It says that if a club's proposed budget exceeds the ceiling "because of unusual circumstances" that club may petition the board for "special release."

The New York Yankees, last year's World Series winner, would seem to be in the clear.

Joe DiMaggio has announced he won't be on the ball field next year. That means the Yankees will have DiMaggio's reported $100,000 salary to play around with.

And the Boston Red Sox may come out very well indeed if Ted Williams doesn't collect his reported $100,000 salary. He may be in the U. S. Marines.

The new policy was formulated under pressure from the major leagues—and incidentally from Musial, who made a personal plea to the salary board two weeks ago for release. Officials said it would be put out as a formal regulation within a few days. They said it would apply to all organized baseball but the major leagues and the Pacific Coast League would be the only ones affected in any great way.

Feb. 1 is the deadline for the clubs to have 1952 contracts in the hands of their players. That's one reason the board hurried to make the new policy public.

Can-Am Deadline Extended 20 Days

A 20-day extension for payment of club guarantees to the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues has been granted the Canadian-American League, President Albert E. Houghton of Schenectady said last night.

Deadline for payment was Jan. 10, but George Trautman, National Association president, extended the date to February 1. In the annual meeting in Oneonta last Nov. 13, league officials postponed a decision on 1951 operations until December 15. A snowstorm wiped out that session.

Houghton said that he will call a meeting either for this Saturday or a week from Saturday at Schenectady for final action on whether the circuit will operate next season.

Pro Grid Teams Make Picks Today

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The National Football League, having all but officially rejected Commissioner Bert Bell's proposals for elimination of the point after touchdown and for a sudden death playoff of tie games, swung into the first order of business today—the annual college draft.

The convention opened with a special bonus choice in which only seven of the 12 teams were eligible. They included Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago Cardinals, Los Angeles, New York Yanks, San Francisco and Green Bay. The others were not eligible as they had received bonus picks in previous years.

After the draft, which was expected to last far into the night, come the business sessions.

In additions to wrangling over the rules, the club owners were prepared to listen to the complaints of Ted Collins, owner of the Yanks.

Collins, who has settled all his obligations to remain in good standing in the league, was expected to demand more lucrative home dates than he had last year.

Duke to Head Field

Goshen, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Duke of Lullwater, top money winning two-year-old of 1951, heads a field of 73 three-year-old trotters still eligible for the Hambletonian Stakes to be raced at Good Time Park in August. Payments of $259 were made on each of the 73 Jan. 1. A final payment of $500 for horses starting in the trotting classic is due two days before the race. If as many as 15 start, the race will be worth around $90,000. The Duke, a son of Volomite owned by Walter T. Candler of Decatur, Ga., won $59,270 last year in winning 14 of his 16 starts.

PESKY STEALS KISS AT McDERMOTT WEDDING

Maury McDermott, Boston Red Sox pitcher, looks askance as Johnny Pesky, Sox infielder, steals the first kiss from his bride after their wedding at St. Pius Church, Lynn, Mass., Jan. 16. The Sox lefthander is protesting that he hasn't had a chance to kiss his wife yet. The bride is the former Barbara Riley, an airline hostess of Miami, Fla. Pesky was best man at the nuptials. Hawks Trip Rangers In Lone Game, 6-4

(By The Associated Press)

The last place Chicago Black Hawks won less, lost more and played fewer ties than any team in the National Hockey League—but the New York Rangers can't understand why.

The Hawks, who have only 27 points, broke out in a rash of goals last night to defeat the Rangers, 6-4, in the loop's only scheduled game.

At the end of the first period, they were tied at 1-1. At the end of the second session, the Hawks led, 3-2. They scored at the start of the third period, then kept two goals ahead of the Rangers the rest of the way.

The Rangers are tied for fifth place, with the Boston Bruins, each with 35 points, eight ahead of the Hawks.

Lakers Belt Celtics, Regain NBA Margin

(By The Associated Press)

The streaking Minneapolis Lakers are back in undisputed possession of first place in the western division of the National Basketball Association.

The Lakers regained the top slot from the idle Rochester Royals by downing the Boston Celtics, 108-94, last night, for their 10th victory in their last 12 games.

The defeat snapped the Celtics' home-court winning streak at seven games and sent them reeling into second place in the eastern section. It was Boston's third home loss of the season.

Vern Mikkelsen of Minneapolis led his team in scoring with 36 points and teammate Jim Pollard chipped in with 25. Ed Macauley and Bob Cousy were high for Boston with 25 apiece.

The Milwaukee Hawks rallied in the fourth period to whip the Baltimore Bullets, 77-61 a seven-point spurt by Don Boven in the final four minutes sparked the Hawks to their second victory in two nights.

Baltimore's Don Barksdale garnered scoring laurels with 24 points. Dike Eddleman topped Milwaukee with 18 tallies.

Esopus, 156th and Kaplans Register Wins in YMCA 'B' Basketball League

Jerry Kaplan High With 25 Markers

The Esopus Firemen, 156th Field Artillery and Kaplan Bag Company cagers registered victories in the YMCA "B" Basketball League Wednesday night at the Y boards.

Esopus tripped Elstons by 90-36, the Guardsmen eked out a 47-46 decision over Silsby Motors and Kaplans defeated the Economy Construction quintet by 71-62.

With five players hitting the double figures, the Esopus Firemen coasted to their easy conquest. Jim Ferraro led the onslaught with 22 points while Ron Hooper followed with 17. Bob Berger hit for 14. Richie Mains and Doerkson each followed with 10 apiece.

Bucky Bower nearly turned out to be a one-man show for the losers with his 22 markers.

The Firemen led at the half by 48-22.

ESOPUS 156th — 2

The vastly-improved 156th quintet, sparked by Huyler Van Wagenen and Jay Rider who scored 18 and 15 points in that order, led all the way in its contest with Silsby Motors. With a minute to go, however, Johnnie Mauro of the Motormen, slipped in a neat one-hander from the side to knot the score at 46-all.

Dunham Decides Game

With 30 seconds left on the clock, Don Koeppen fouled Bill Dunham of the Artillery five and Dunham responded with the free throw conversion to make it 47-46. After Dunham's vital one-pointer, the Guardsmen held possession of the ball for the remainder of the contest.

Don Jones and Al Kurdt paced the losers with 12 and 11 points respectively.

Sparked by Jerry Kaplan and Bob Baumer who hit for 25 and 23 points, Kaplans proved too much for the Economy team in a free-scoring battle.

Chris Rienzo hit the cords for 17 points to pace the losers. Don Gardeski flipped in 11 while Frank Fiore found the range for 14.

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The American Professional Basketball League, which only 48 hours ago was without a president and three of its teams, today set a new course to finish the season. John J. O'Brien, the president who resigned when Washington, Bridgeport, Conn., and Carbondale, Pa., dropped out, was persuaded to take over again last night. Hawks Trip Rangers In Lone Game, 6-4

(By The Associated Press)

The last place Chicago Black Hawks won less, lost more and played fewer ties than any team in the National Hockey League—but the New York Rangers can't understand why.

The Hawks, who have only 27 points, broke out in a rash of goals last night to defeat the Rangers, 6-4, in the loop's only scheduled game.

At the end of the first period, they were tied at 1-1. At the end of the second session, the Hawks led, 3-2. They scored at the start of the third period, then kept two goals ahead of the Rangers the rest of the way.

The Rangers are tied for fifth place, with the Boston Bruins, each with 35 points, eight ahead of the Hawks.

Lakers Belt Celtics, Regain NBA Margin

(By The Associated Press)

The streaking Minneapolis Lakers are back in undisputed possession of first place in the western division of the National Basketball Association.

The Lakers regained the top slot from the idle Rochester Royals by downing the Boston Celtics, 108-94, last night, for their 10th victory in their last 12 games.

The defeat snapped the Celtics' home-court winning streak at seven games and sent them reeling into second place in the eastern section. It was Boston's third home loss of the season.

Vern Mikkelsen of Minneapolis led his team in scoring with 36 points and teammate Jim Pollard chipped in with 25. Ed Macauley and Bob Cousy were high for Boston with 25 apiece.

The Milwaukee Hawks rallied in the fourth period to whip the Baltimore Bullets, 77-61 a seven-point spurt by Don Boven in the final four minutes sparked the Hawks to their second victory in two nights.

Baltimore's Don Barksdale garnered scoring laurels with 24 points. Dike Eddleman topped Milwaukee with 18 tallies.

Esopus, 156th and Kaplans Register Wins in YMCA 'B' Basketball League

Jerry Kaplan High With 25 Markers

The Esopus Firemen, 156th Field Artillery and Kaplan Bag Company cagers registered victories in the YMCA "B" Basketball League Wednesday night at the Y boards.

Esopus tripped Elstons by 90-36, the Guardsmen eked out a 47-46 decision over Silsby Motors and Kaplans defeated the Economy Construction quintet by 71-62.

With five players hitting the double figures, the Esopus Firemen coasted to their easy conquest. Jim Ferraro led the onslaught with 22 points while Ron Hooper followed with 17. Bob Berger hit for 14. Richie Mains and Doerkson each followed with 10 apiece.

Bucky Bower nearly turned out to be a one-man show for the losers with his 22 markers.

The Firemen led at the half by 48-22.

ESOPUS 156th — 2

The vastly-improved 156th quintet, sparked by Huyler Van Wagenen and Jay Rider who scored 18 and 15 points in that order, led all the way in its contest with Silsby Motors. With a minute to go, however, Johnnie Mauro of the Motormen, slipped in a neat one-hander from the side to knot the score at 46-all.

Dunham Decides Game

With 30 seconds left on the clock, Don Koeppen fouled Bill Dunham of the Artillery five and Dunham responded with the free throw conversion to make it 47-46. After Dunham's vital one-pointer, the Guardsmen held possession of the ball for the remainder of the contest.

Don Jones and Al Kurdt paced the losers with 12 and 11 points respectively.

Sparked by Jerry Kaplan and Bob Baumer who hit for 25 and 23 points, Kaplans proved too much for the Economy team in a free-scoring battle.

Chris Rienzo hit the cords for 17 points to pace the losers. Don Gardeski flipped in 11 while Frank Fiore found the range for 14.

Reds Display Bomb Crater To Allies; in Neutral Zone

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Communists today charged that an allied plane dropped a bomb in the neutral zone near Kaesong, and UN investigators were shown a deep hillside crater on the outskirts.

The crater was eight feet deep and about 25 feet wide.

Six Koreans from a nearby village told investigators they heard planes overhead before the bomb fell.

Marine Col. James C. Murray looked at the crater, picked up a fragment and said:

"Apparently there was an explosion here. We will see what we can find out about it."

UN and Communist investigators were quiet and friendly. The Reds did not report there had been any damage.

The accusation was made at Thursday's "no progress" truce talks.

Slap at Red Cross

The Reds sharply criticized allied negotiators for allowing two representatives of the International Red Cross to enter the Panmunjom area Wednesday and Thursday.

The Communists handed the allies a written message declaring the Red Cross delegates were not welcome. And added:

"We hope that no similar incidents will recur in the future."

The two Red Cross representatives returned to Seoul after handing an envelope to North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho. They were refused permission to enter North Korea to inspect prisoner of war camps.

The Communists said they consider it "unnecessary to receive representatives of the Red Cross."

Both subcommittees working on armistice terms spent the day wrangling over issues which have deadlocked the talks for weeks.

'Same Old Ground'

An allied briefing officer said that for the delegates discussing prisoner exchange "it was merely a matter of ploughing over the same old ground with the same results—no results."

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby asked Chinese Col. Tsai Cheng-wan for whom he was speaking Wednesday when he declared angrily that Red China will "fight to the end" if any Chinese soldiers in allied hands are repatriated to Chinese Nationalist Formosa.

Tsai, in firm control of his temper, gave no direct answer.

Libby accused the Communists of violating the Geneva Convention by failing to mark their prisoner of war camps. He suggested that safeguards be set up to avoid any future attacks on North Korean prison camps.

North Korean J. Gen. Lee Sang Cho said he would think it over.

Occurred at Night

An official UN release quoted Lee as saying that since the alleged attack Monday on a camp near Kangdong occurred at night it would have made no difference if the camp were marked.

Lee also was quoted as saying the Communists tried marking the camp, but allied planes attacked it anyway so the identification marks were not replaced.

Allied headquarters said planes were bombing military targets in the Kangdong area Monday night, but it had no way of knowing whether the prison camp was accidentally attacked since the Reds never have disclosed the location of their camps.

In the subcommittee discussing supervision of a truce, Maj. Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh told the Reds construction of airfields near the battle line would give them increased air power even though no additional planes were brought into Korea.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang dismissed the argument with a statement that aircraft are the basic components of air power and the Communist have agreed to prohibit the movement of planes into Korea during an armistice.

Hsieh also reiterated that any restriction of construction of airfields would constitute interference with North Korea's internal affairs.

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 11 a. m. Friday (9 p. m. Thursday EST).

The United States is now the world's leading toymaker.

Nurse Back Home After Long Tour In Overseas Post

Woodstock, Jan. 17—Two Korean war veterans from this village, Cpl. John Payne and Cpl. Peteer O. Brinkman, have spent their leaves here and have already returned to their bases for reassignment. The first young woman, however, who has been in service overseas has returned to her home in the village for rest and relaxation after two and one-half strenuous years in Japan. She is Capt. Helene Nielson, daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Nielson. An air force nurse, she was assigned to a hospital in Japan in 1949, before the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

Capt. Nielson landed last Saturday in San Francisco, and with three other members from the same station were fortunate enough to obtain immediate plane reservations, which helped to bring her to her home in Woodstock in record time.

Prior to the Korean war, Capt. Nielson was attached to the 395th Army Station Hospital at Nagoya, Japan, although she was at that time an air force nurse. Later, the hospital was changed to a regular air force unit. At the time of her arrival in Japan, the hospital was only a small one, she recalls, and it remained so for a year, containing but 50 beds.

With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea the tiny hospital was swamped with an influx of patients from the battle area, and they began to handle patients from all of the UN troops.

Japanese Big Help

"It was quite a struggle at first," said Capt. Nielson, "but everyone was taken care of who came to us, with the help of the Japanese nurses. Although their standard of nursing was not as high as ours, they were willing and adept and soon we were able to teach them our methods."

The same hospital now contains 1,000 beds, has now been stabilized and is staffed with the finest doctors and specialists.

"It took a little doing," she said, "for at first we were short of everything, but the Japanese were wonderful improvising furniture and equipment and helping us to get things done."

When asked if she had participated in any dramatic events, Capt. Nielson replied modesty, "no, nursing is just nursing wherever you are. We took care of the patients who were evacuated to us. Over there you feel that it is a very worthwhile job—a job that we want to complete."

Capt. Nielson, who will continue with her work as an air force nurse, is now on a 30 day leave, after which she will report for reassignment to Castle Air Force Base, Calif.

She became an air force nurse first but served with the U. S. Army during World War 2, after which she was transferred back to the air force medical department in 1949. With her family she has been a resident of Woodstock since 1948.

Cashdollar Named Head of Firemen

Woodstock, Jan. 17 — At the regular meeting of the Woodstock Fire Company No. 2, Wittenberg, the following officers for the coming year were elected: Everett Cashdollar, president; Nelson Shultis, vice-president; Joseph Forno, treasurer; Roger Grazier, secretary; Roger Grazier, captain; Nelson Shultis, first lieutenant; Roger Cashdollar, second lieutenant; Edgar Baker, chaplain.

The following members of the company will serve as drivers: Aaron Van De Bogart, Jr., Roger Cashdollar, Roger Grazier, James A. Shultis, Stanley Shultis, Calvin C. MacDaniel, Eugene Shultis, Victor Shultis, Kenneth Vredenburgh, William Spanhake, Jr., and Nelson Shultis.

It was announced during the meeting that a letter had been received from the New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization that the State Insurance Department has approved the recognition of a C-2 rating for the Wittenberg company, retroactive to Nov. 13, 1951. This is a rating given only to fire companies of excellent standing by the fire insurance underwriters.

Kroll and Barzin Cited for Work

Woodstock, Jan. 17—The Kroll Quartet, under the direction of William Kroll, was featured in the program of the Musicians Guild at the Town Hall Monday night in New York. According to the New York Herald Tribune, the Guild "gave another of its carefully selected programs in performances of quality.

"Haydn's Quartet, Op. 76, No. 1, received a luminous interpretation from the Kroll Quartet, and both here and in the Bartok, this well integrated foursome impressed the listener once again as being a string ensemble that New York may be proud to call its own."

The Herald Tribune also reported that "The National Orchestral Association, under the direction of Leon Barzin, began its concert at Carnegie Hall Monday night with a lusty performance of Berlioz's 'Roman Carnival' Overture which was then followed by Beethoven's First Symphony and Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, in D Minor, with Toba Brill as soloist. Throughout the program, Mr. Barzin's young orchestra revealed a thoroughly professional polish and a unity of execution to honor many an older, better-seasoned group. . . . The performances, in general, did not want in authority, assurance and the brighter shades of orchestral good-humor."

Barzin has been heard in past seasons both at the Maverick Concert Hall and with the Woodstock String Quartet, as cellist. Kroll is musical director for the Maverick Sunday concerts.

The exhibition, at the galleries of the National Academy of Design, will continue to February 3.

REQUIRED READING — Kindergarten prospect Willie Grunspan, 5, is about ready to throw in the towel as he contemplates the 16-foot stack of books he'll have to plough through before he reaches the high school graduating status attained by Russell Taskey, 18. The two Cleveland boys posed with the ceiling-high stack of books at the suggestion of Cleveland Press cameraman Glenn Zahn, who remembered that there was an awful lot of book learnin' from school's beginning to school's end.

Reds Display Bomb Crater To Allies; in Neutral Zone

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Communists today charged that an allied plane dropped a bomb in the neutral zone near Kaesong, and UN investigators were shown a deep hillside crater on the outskirts.

The crater was eight feet deep and about 25 feet wide.

Six Koreans from a nearby village told investigators they heard planes overhead before the bomb fell.

Marine Col. James C. Murray looked at the crater, picked up a fragment and said:

"Apparently there was an explosion here. We will see what we can find out about it."

UN and Communist investigators were quiet and friendly. The Reds did not report there had been any damage.

The accusation was made at Thursday's "no progress" truce talks.

Slap at Red Cross

The Reds sharply criticized allied negotiators for allowing two representatives of the International Red Cross to enter the Panmunjom area Wednesday and Thursday.

The Communists handed the allies a written message declaring the Red Cross delegates were not welcome. And added:

"We hope that no similar incidents will recur in the future."

The two Red Cross representatives returned to Seoul after handing an envelope to North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho. They were refused permission to enter North Korea to inspect prisoner of war camps.

The Communists said they consider it "unnecessary to receive representatives of the Red Cross."

Both subcommittees working on armistice terms spent the day wrangling over issues which have deadlocked the talks for weeks.

'Same Old Ground'

An allied briefing officer said that for the delegates discussing prisoner exchange "it was merely a matter of ploughing over the same old ground with the same results—no results."

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby asked Chinese Col. Tsai Cheng-wan for whom he was speaking Wednesday when he declared angrily that Red China will "fight to the end" if any Chinese soldiers in allied hands are repatriated to Chinese Nationalist Formosa.

Tsai, in firm control of his temper, gave no direct answer.

Libby accused the Communists of violating the Geneva Convention by failing to mark their prisoner of war camps. He suggested that safeguards be set up to avoid any future attacks on North Korean prison camps.

North Korean J. Gen. Lee Sang Cho said he would think it over.

Occurred at Night

An official UN release quoted Lee as saying that since the alleged attack Monday on a camp near Kangdong occurred at night it would have made no difference if the camp were marked.

Lee also was quoted as saying the Communists tried marking the camp, but allied planes attacked it anyway so the identification marks were not replaced.

Allied headquarters said planes were bombing military targets in the Kangdong area Monday night, but it had no way of knowing whether the prison camp was accidentally attacked since the Reds never have disclosed the location of their camps.

In the subcommittee discussing supervision of a truce, Maj. Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh told the Reds construction of airfields near the battle line would give them increased air power even though no additional planes were brought into Korea.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang dismissed the argument with a statement that aircraft are the basic components of air power and the Communist have agreed to prohibit the movement of planes into Korea during an armistice.

Hsieh also reiterated that any restriction of construction of airfields would constitute interference with North Korea's internal affairs.

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 11 a. m. Friday (9 p. m. Thursday EST).

The United States is now the world's leading toymaker.

Nurse Back Home After Long Tour In Overseas Post

Woodstock, Jan. 17—Two Korean war veterans from this village, Cpl. John Payne and Cpl. Peteer O. Brinkman, have spent their leaves here and have already returned to their bases for reassignment. The first young woman, however, who has been in service overseas has returned to her home in the village for rest and relaxation after two and one-half strenuous years in Japan. She is Capt. Helene Nielson, daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Nielson. An air force nurse, she was assigned to a hospital in Japan in 1949, before the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

Capt. Nielson landed last Saturday in San Francisco, and with three other members from the same station were fortunate enough to obtain immediate plane reservations, which helped to bring her to her home in Woodstock in record time.

Prior to the Korean war, Capt. Nielson was attached to the 395th Army Station Hospital at Nagoya, Japan, although she was at that time an air force nurse. Later, the hospital was changed to a regular air force unit. At the time of her arrival in Japan, the hospital was only a small one, she recalls, and it remained so for a year, containing but 50 beds.

With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea the tiny hospital was swamped with an influx of patients from the battle area, and they began to handle patients from all of the UN troops.

Japanese Big Help

"It was quite a struggle at first," said Capt. Nielson, "but everyone was taken care of who came to us, with the help of the Japanese nurses. Although their standard of nursing was not as high as ours, they were willing and adept and soon we were able to teach them our methods."

The same hospital now contains 1,000 beds, has now been stabilized and is staffed with the finest doctors and specialists.

"It took a little doing," she said, "for at first we were short of everything, but the Japanese vere wonderful improvising furniture and equipment and helping us to get things done."

When asked if she had participated in any dramatic events, Capt. Nielson replied modesty, "no, nursing is just nursing wherever you are. We took care of the patients who were evacuated to us. Over there you feel that it is a very worthwhile job—a job that we want to complete."

Capt. Nielson, who will continue with her work as an air force nurse, is now on a 30 day leave, after which she will report for reassignment to Castle Air Force Base, Calif.

She became an air force nurse first but served with the U. S. Army during World War 2, after which she was transferred back to the air force medical department in 1949. With her family she has been a resident of Woodstock since 1948.

Cashdollar Named Head of Firemen

Woodstock, Jan. 17 — At the regular meeting of the Woodstock Fire Company No. 2, Wittenberg, the following officers for the coming year were elected: Everett Cashdollar, president; Nelson Shultis, vice-president; Joseph Forno, treasurer; Roger Grazier, secretary; Roger Grazier, captain; Nelson Shultis, first lieutenant; Roger Cashdollar, second lieutenant; Edgar Baker, chaplain.

The following members of the company will serve as drivers: Aaron Van De Bogart, Jr., Roger Cashdollar, Roger Grazier, James A. Shultis, Stanley Shultis, Calvin C. MacDaniel, Eugene Shultis, Victor Shultis, Kenneth Vredenburgh, William Spanhake, Jr., and Nelson Shultis.

It was announced during the meeting that a letter had been received from the New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization that the State Insurance Department has approved the recognition of a C-2 rating for the Wittenberg company, retroactive to Nov. 13, 1951. This is a rating given only to fire companies of excellent standing by the fire insurance underwriters.

Kroll and Barzin Cited for Work

Woodstock, Jan. 17—The Kroll Quartet, under the direction of William Kroll, was featured in the program of the Musicians Guild at the Town Hall Monday night in New York. According to the New York Herald Tribune, the Guild "gave another of its carefully selected programs in performances of quality.

"Haydn's Quartet, Op. 76, No. 1, received a luminous interpretation from the Kroll Quartet, and both here and in the Bartok, this well integrated foursome impressed the listener once again as being a string ensemble that New York may be proud to call its own."

The Herald Tribune also reported that "The National Orchestral Association, under the direction of Leon Barzin, began its concert at Carnegie Hall Monday night with a lusty performance of Berlioz's 'Roman Carnival' Overture which was then followed by Beethoven's First Symphony and Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, in D Minor, with Toba Brill as soloist. Throughout the program, Mr. Barzin's young orchestra revealed a thoroughly professional polish and a unity of execution to honor many an older, better-seasoned group. . . . The performances, in general, did not want in authority, assurance and the brighter shades of orchestral good-humor."

Barzin has been heard in past seasons both at the Maverick Concert Hall and with the Woodstock String Quartet, as cellist. Kroll is musical director for the Maverick Sunday concerts.

Klitgaard and Small Art Is in Exhibit

New York, Jan. 16 (Special)—A painting by Georgina Klitgaard of Bearsville and a sculpture by Hannah Small of Woodstock have been selected for inclusion in the tenth annual exhibition of the Audubon Artists, which will be opened to the public here tomorrow.

The Klitgaard painting is "Landscape." The sculpture by Hannah Small is "Affection."

The offerings are among 475 works—oils, watercolors, graphics and sculptures—accepted for the show from among thousands submitted by hopefuls in all parts of the country. The result, described as "a comprehensive demonstration of current trends in contemporary art," includes works ranging from realism to non-objectivism.

The exhibition, at the galleries of the National Academy of Design, will continue to February 3.

REQUIRED READING — Kindergarten prospect Willie Grunspan, 5, is about ready to throw in the towel as he contemplates the 16-foot stack of books he'll have to plough through before he reaches the high school graduating status attained by Russell Taskey, 18. The two Cleveland boys posed with the ceiling-high stack of books at the suggestion of Cleveland Press cameraman Glenn Zahn, who remembered that there was an awful lot of book learnin' from school's beginning to school's end.

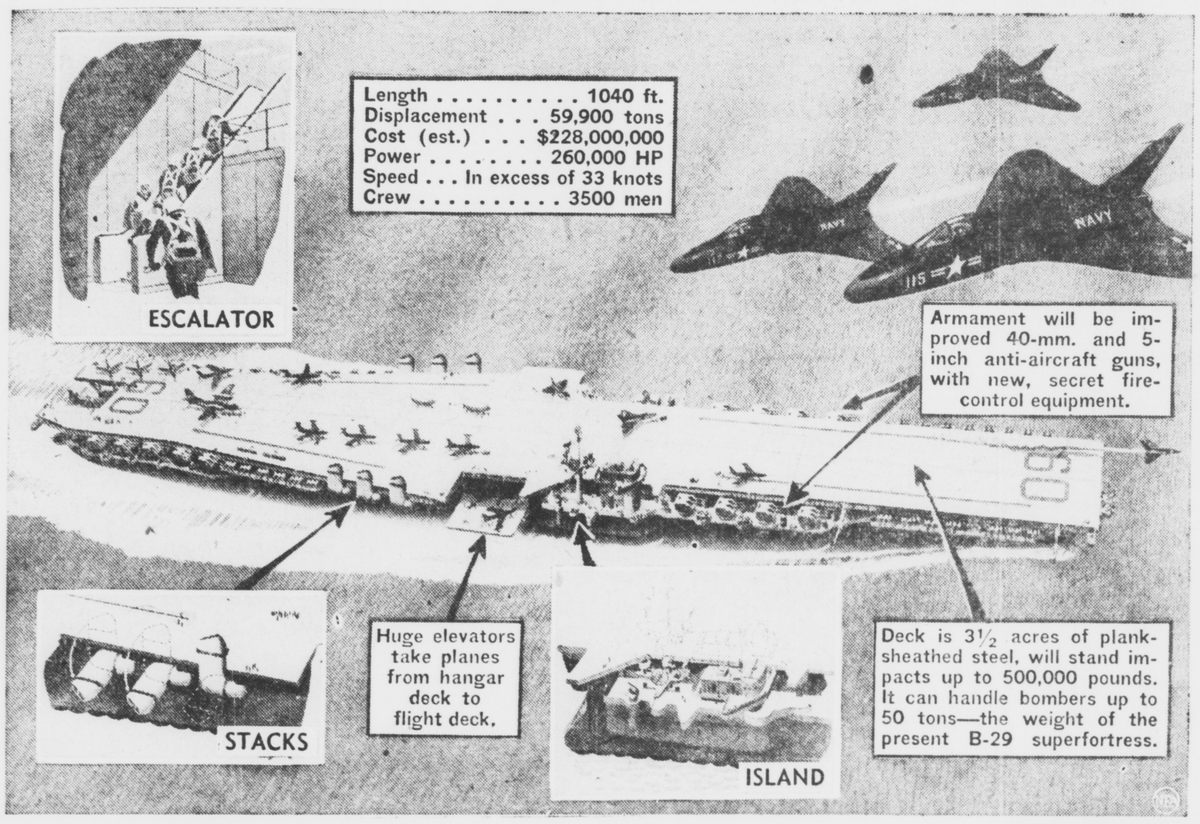
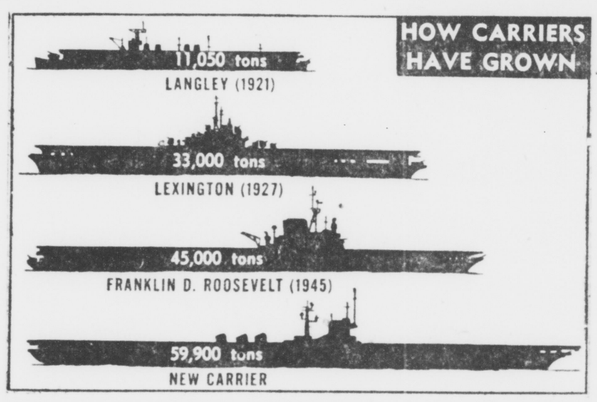
Navy Plans Fleet of Super-Carriers for A-Bombers



President Truman's budget will include funds to build one, maybe two, more 60,000-ton supercarriers capable of launching medium-range atomic bombers, according to Rep. Carl Vinson. The Armed Services committee chairman said his group would give priority to a bill authorizing the new carriers. They will be patterned after the U. S. S. James V. Forrestal, now under construction at Newport News, Va. Picto-diagram above, with artist's conception by Steelways magazine, shows some of the radical features of the Forrestal. The 59,900-ton flattop is bigger by 15,000 tons than any now afloat. Inset sketch shows how the usual navigation bridge and flight-control "island" superstructure will be retractible to allow full use of the flight deck. The smokestacks (inset) are also flexible and capable of being turned outboard. Other inset sketch shows a feature pilots down in the ready room will welcome—an escalator to carry them topside. This is no "sissy" refinement. The minutes and strength it saves over pilots climbing 80 feet of ladder with parachutes strapped on their backs and two belts of 50-caliber ammunition over their shoulders may make the difference between victory and defeat in today's fast-paced aerial warfare.



Search Is Reduced

Seattle, Jan. 17 (AP)—With hope all but gone, the coast guard today reduced its search for the freighter Pennsylvania and the missing crewmen to a one-cutter basis. Aerial search was halted last night for the 45 or 46 crewmen who now have been unheard from for nearly eight days. The only search for the crewmen today was being conducted on a limited basis by the cutter Yacona of Eureka, Calif. Meanwhile, coast guard officials said they plan a full dress inquiry into the tragedy, including particular investigation of the ship's previous voyage. On that trip, from San Francisco to Japan, the Pennsylvania was forced to turn back after being 1,500 miles out and have repairs made to a split in her starboard side.

Violin Is Found On Beach; Lost In Flash Flood

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—A Stradivarius violin valued at $50,000 was found on the beach yesterday less than 24 hours after it was swept from a musician's grasp and carried out to sea by flood waters.

A beach stroller found the case. The instrument inside was water-soaked.

Violinist Sascha Jacobsen, who lost the instrument when he was knocked off his feet by a flash flood Tuesday night, said he hoped the "Strad" could be repaired.

Mrs. Jacobsen said the Red Diamond "Strad" had been loaned to her husband by its owner, Mrs. John W. Garrett, Baltimore, Md. Jacobsen, well known violinist, is a faculty member at the University of Southern California School of Music.

The valuable instrument was found by Frederick H. Sturdy, Beverly Hills attorney who was strolling on the beach.

Tax Is Argued Again

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Whether New York city will seek to continue its three per cent sales tax faced further debate today in the board of estimate. Three previous meetings of the board this week failed to settled the issue. Some influential members of the board favor cutting the tax back to the old two per cent rate—provided other sources can be found to make up the estimated $60,000,000 difference in revenue. Approval of the 1952 Legislature will be required for whatever local tax program the board decides upon.

Violin Is Found On Beach: Lost In Flash Flood

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—A Stradivarius violin valued at $50,000 was found on the beach yesterday less than 24 hours after it was swept from a musician's grasp and carried out to sea by flood waters.

A beach stroller found the case. The instrument inside was water-soaked.

Violinist Sascha Jacobsen, who lost the instrument when he was knocked off his feet by a flash flood Tuesday night, said he hoped the "Strad" could be repaired.

Mrs. Jacobsen said the Red Diamond "Strad" had been loaned to her husband by its owner, Mrs. John W. Garrett, Baltimore, Md. Jacobsen, well known violinist, is a faculty member at the University of Southern California School of Music.

The valuable instrument was found by Frederick H. Sturdy, Beverly Hills attorney who was strolling on the beach.

Tax Is Argued Again

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Whether New York city will seek to continue its three per cent sales tax faced further debate today in the board of estimate. Three previous meetings of the board this week failed to settled the issue. Some influential members of the board favor cutting the tax back to the old two per cent rate—provided other sources can be found to make up the estimated $60,000,000 difference in revenue. Approval of the 1952 Legislature will be required for whatever local tax program the board decides upon.

Trees are nature's best air conditioners, sometimes lowering the temperature around a house five to ten degrees in midsummer.

In 1949 about 48 million U. S. workers were in jobs covered by old-age insurance.
